Hays emerges from coma induced by overdose

BARNESVILLE, Ohio. (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays emerged today from a coma induced by an overdose of sleeping pills, his doctor said. Hays smiled at his wife and spoke short sentences that made sense, the doctor reported.

Dr. Richard Phillips said the overdose taken by Hays, central figure in the congressional payroll-sex scandal which broke May 23, was apparently accidental and that Hays should be fully recovered within 10 days.

The 65-year-old Democratic congressman was in satisfactory condition, Phillips said, but is still technically semi-comatose despite periods when he makes rational statements.

Hays was unconscious when taken to the hospital Thursday morning. He awakened at 5:30 a.m. this morning and asked to see his wife, Pat, who kept a night-long vigil at the hospital. She returned to the room later and the congressman smiled at her, Phillips said.

"His recovery should be complete," Phillips told a midmorning press briefing. After his release from the hospital he will have to rest for a week to 10 days before returning to his congressional duties, the doctor said.

In Washington, meanwhile, House leaders said today that a proposal to force Hays to resign as chairman of the House Administration Committee will be put off until he recovers.

The proposal was scheduled for action next Wednesday at a meeting of the House Democratic Caucus, but House Speaker Carl Albert and House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill said there is no question that meeting will be postponed.

Phillips said studies of the blood are being made now at the University of Pittsburgh to determine the amount of the sleeping-pill overdose. The pills had been prescribed for Hays because he was under stress, Phillips said.

Also at the briefing was Carol Clawson, Hays's Washington press secretrary. Mrs. Clawson denied a report by columnist Jack Anderson that revelation of Hays' extramarital sex activities had alientated him from his wife of a few weeks and that she had left him Wednesday for a second time.

Mrs. Clawson also denied an Anderson report that Hays would shoot himself if he felt it would spare his wife any further pain over the congressional payroll-scandal in which Hays admitted he had a personal relationship with 33-year-old Elizabeth Ray.

But less than a week ago, when asked by an Associated Press reporter whether he had threatened suicide, Hays had responded, "No comment."

Miss Ray, the 33-year-old blonde who accused Hays of putting her on the staff of his House Administration Committee to be his mistress, arrived at London airport today and appeared close to tears when told Hays had been hospitalized.

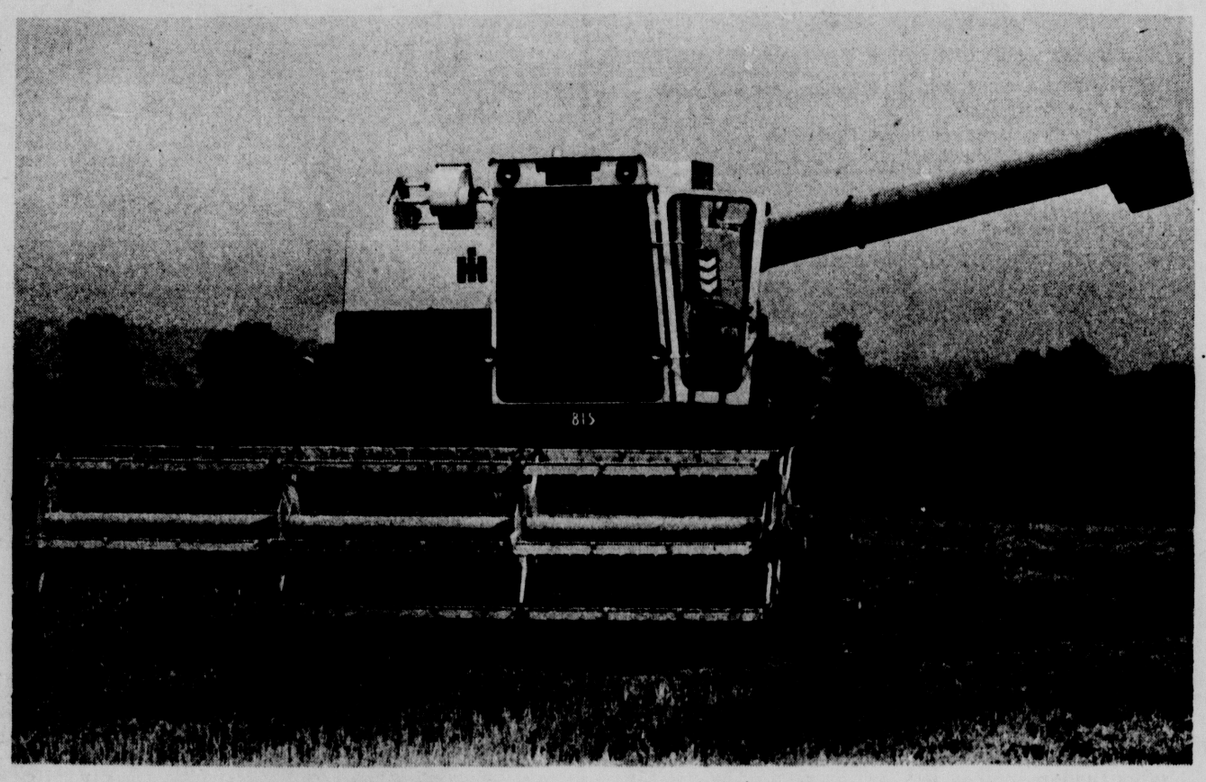

"It's dreadful. I'm very shocked," she said. "Before I left ... I had no idea anything like this had happened."

Miss Ray, dressed in blue jeans, blue blouse and a patterned velvet jacket, said she was in London to promote a book she has written about the sexual affairs of fictitious characters in Washington.

Phillips had said Thursday night. "Every hour his level of coma is slowly and steadily decreasing. He's going to make it."

Wheat harvest begins

Area farmers tested wheat fields this week and found them dry enough to begin harvesting their crop. Here, Roy Proctor Sr. of Benton Route One, combines wheat in his fields between Benton and Commerce. The freeze last month damaged the crop a little, according to Proctor, but he still expects a pretty good yield.

2 personal injury suits ask $1.1 million damages

BENTON— Damages totaling $1,100,000 are sought in two personal injury suits filed Wednesday in the office of Scott County Circuit Court.Another $29,850 in damages are sought in a suit filed Tuesday.

A $900,000 suit was filed by Hettie Daugherty of Oran against Sam Tanksley Trucking Co. and driver Barney Towell of Cape Girardeau.

Count one of the suit states that at 4:11 p.m. Aug. 29, 1975, Eugene Daugherty, husband of the plaintiff, was driving his auto in the southbound lane of South Kingshighway in Cape Girardeau, when Barney Towell, operating a tractor truck owned by Tanksley Trucking in the northbound lane, allegedly drove the tractor across the center line dividing the north bound and south bound traffic, causing the truck to collide with the Daugherty auto. Daugherty sustained injuries and later died.

The suit further states that Towell, allegedly negligently and carelessly failed to keep his vehicle under proper control; allegedly failed to keep a proper lookout for other traffic; allegedly failed to drive and operate his vehicle upon the right half of the roradway; allegedly he negligently and carelessly drove his vehicle at excessive rate of speed under the circumstances then existing and that he failed to stop, slow or swerve his vehicle to avoid the accident.

That as a result of the collision, and alleged carelessness and negligent omission and violation of the law by Barney Towell and agent for Sam Tanksley Trucking Inc., Eugene Daugherty was caused to sustain injuries resulting in his death.

Count one of the suit seeks $200,000 in damages from Tanksley Trucking for the death of Daugherty.

In count two, which asks $250,000 from Tanksley, the suit states Mrs. Daugherty, a passenger in the auto driven by her husband at the time of the accident, suffered damage and permanent injury and infection to her left eye, injury to her head resulting in amnesic condition, compound fractures to her arm, suffered injury to her hip, leg, ankle, bones, joints and that her muscles and membranes, were

A pedestrian was killed, three persons were seriously injured and two others received minor injuries in three area traffic accidents Thursday, the highway patrol announced today.

Raymond Louis Fuchs, 41, of Poplar Bluff, died at the scene after being struck by an auto being driven by Denver Colwell, 48, of Columbus, Ind.

The accident occurred at 6:10 p.m. on Highway 60 four miles west of Dexter when Fuchs parked his vehicle on the westbound shoulder, then got out and started running across the road where he was struck by the eastbound Colwell auto.

The body was taken to the Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

In a one- vehicle accident at 12:05 p.m. on a gravel township road two miles northwest of Campbell, Darrell Lee Cowell, 17, of Malden lost control of an eastbound car when it struck loose gravel and ran off the road on a curve.

Cowell and two passengers, Billie Cunningham, 15, of Bernie and Timothy Tittle, 26, of Malden, suffered serious injuries. Another passenger, Freddie Lee Smiley, 19, of Bernie, received minor injuries. All four were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff, then Cowell and Cunningham were later transferred to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

David D. Caldwell, 24 of Arbyrd Route One received minor injuries at 2 p.m. when his northbound tractor trailer truck struck the engine of a Cotton Belt train operated by Fred H. Bridger, 49, of Jonesboro, Ark., Route Five.

The patrol reported the accident occurred in Arbyrd when Caldwell failed to see the train and struck the side of the engine as it crossed the highway.

Calswell was taken to Palenske Clinic in Hornersville.

Knife blade thrown into motorist's head

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — A knife thrower buried a blade in the head of a southeast Missouri man Thursday, Poplar Bluff police said Friday.

James H. Wallace of Broseley told police he was riding in a automobile with the window rolled down, when a knife was thrown at him.

Capt. Jerry Webb said a blade with a five-inch handle was buried to the hilt in the right side of Wallace's head near the temple.

Wallace was transferred from Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff to a Memphis hospital. Police say he never lost consciousness.

Police had a woman in custody.

'Birthday in Park' set

The Sikeston Bicentennial Commission Thursday announced a list of activities that will highlight the "Old-Fashioned Birthday in the Park" July 3 in Malone Park.

The activities begin at 1 p.m. with a talent show featuring performers from all over Southeast Missouri. Performances will continue all afternoon.

Other events will include a bubble gum blowing contest, three-legged race, peanut push, watermelon eating contest, celebrity dunking barrell, hog calling contest, arts and crafts exhibits, Bicentennial costume contest, Bicentennial princess beauty pageant and a street dance featuring the "Violent Hash."

The commission says it is suggesting that the public bring a blanket and a picnic lunch and enjoy "good wholesome family entertainment in celebration of our nation's 200th birthday."

Musical performers or groups interested in performing should contact Ben Jordan at 471-9029 or 472-0795 or the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce office, 471-2498.

Sikeston to salute America

The 21-day period from Flag Day, June 14, to July 4, has been designated Honor America Days by a proclamation signed by Mayor Don Fulton.

The designation says in part that Sikeston is taking this opportunity to salute the founding fathers and other major figures whose character, wisdom and physical exertions contributed toward establishing the viability of the republic.

"We desire to not only acclaim these forebearers, but to also analyze and assess their concepts and methods and to consider adapting them to our contemporary problems," the proclamation reads.

"We must realize that although the United States can enjoy feelings of justifiable pride as we view in retrospect we must also unite and conquer the new perplexities which the United States will face as we enter the threshold of our third century...

"We desire the uniting of all people for a truly representative Bicentennial celebration in order to deepen the understanding of each other's problems."

Purse stolen from car

Jane Ann Felker, 708 Taylor St., told police her purse was taken from the front seat of her car between 3:15 and 3:40 p.m. Wednesday.

The theft occurred while the car was parked at Marks Food Mart, 700 N. Main St., or the Jaycee Swimming Pool on Taylor Street. The purse contained about $10.

The purse was found and returned later, but the money was gone.

Call special election

East Prairie to realign wards

EAST PRAIRIE— The date for a special election to elect a mayor and alderman cannot be set until wards in the city are realigned. However, the City Council Thursday night indicated all efforts would be made to hold the election Aug. 3 in conjunction with the regular primary election.

The special election is necessary, since city residents voted June 1 to abolish city manager-council form of city government.

The alighments of the two wards will be handled by the county clerk's office, and according to City Manager Frank Carter, County Clerk Arthur Lee Goodman said his office would begin work on the matter immediately.

City Attorney Fielding Potashnick informed the council that ordinances of the city will have to be revised, since the city has reverted back from third class to fourth class. He indicated the cost for revision would be approximately $3,000.

Potashnick also said he was seeking a ruling from the attorney general's office on the length of the term of those elected at the special election.

He is unsure if the elected officials will be in office just until April of 1977, the regular city

Clean-up week scheduled

NEW MADRID — A citywide clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign will begin Monday, spearheaded by the Community Betterment Committee in cooperation with the city council.

The committee and city officials are asking all citizens to join forces during the week-long effort to clean up the town and to make it brighter, healthier and safer.

City- operated trucks will pick up trash all week. Citizens are urged to clean out attics and reduce fire hazards and to clear yards of debris and trash.

Trash and debris should be placed in trash cans, plastic bags or boxes and set near the street or curb for easy access for the pickup trucks.

The committee is asking for volunteers to bring brooms, rakes and hoes and meet at the museum at 10 a.m. June 19 to help clean up the downtown area.

As an added incentive for young people to help clean up the town, the Chamber of Commerce and Bank of New Madrid have announced that one penny will be paid for every can or bottle picked upoff the streets and brought to the Chamber office.

Carter expected to win Missouri's uncommitted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Although more than a third of the Missouri Democrats attending the state convention here Saturday will be officially uncommitted to any candidate, most believe front-running presidential candidate Jimmy Carter will gain their support by day's end.

"As a practical matter, I think Carter has it (the nomination), but I was elected as an uncommitted and I want to talk to my people first before I make any formal changes," said one in a telephone interview.

The 839 state party members chosen more than a month ago at local party caucuses will meet here to complete the selection of the state's 71-member delegation to the Democratic National Convention next month in New York. Having already chosen 54 national convention delegates at mass meetings in each of the 10 congressional districts three weeks ago, they will fill out the delegation by picking 17 more at-large delegates Saturday.

Of the 54 delegates selected so far, several have already switched from their origianl uncommitted stand—two going to Carter and two others going to anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack. The totals based on an Associated Press Survey now stand at 29 for Carter, three each for Mrs. McCormack and Arizona Congressman Morris Udall and one for Washington Sen. Henry Jackson.

The remaining 18 are uncommitted although five of them along with one Udall delegate and the Jackson backer have said in interviews that they are now leaning heavily toward Carter.

By being uncommitted, I've never been anti-Carter," one of those five said. "I felt this election was too important to be in a hurry to get behind any one candidate. But we have to deal with reality and the reality is that Carter is probably going to be the nominee."

State Treasurer James Spainhower, who began backing Carter last month, has predicted the former Georgia governor will get 13 of the 17 delegates to be chosen Saturday.

"I don't think there's any stopping him now and that will be reflected in our (state) convention," Spainhower said.

Endorsements of his candidacy by most of his national political rivals earlier this week have catapulted Carter to all but an assured first-ballot nomination. But many Missouri Democrats are still clutching to their official uncommitted status, apparently still miffed by the way state party leaders handled a controversial switch in mid-May from endorsing uncommitted delegates to endorsing Carter.

"It's a matter of principle," one nominally uncommitted delegate said. "They told us one day to be uncommitted and then the next to go for Carter. I think that's the viewpoint of most rank and file Democrats."

Hoping to take advantage of that situation is California Gov. Edmund Brown, the only Carter rival to claim the nomination is not locked up. Brown has scheduled a meeting with uncommitted delegates in hopes of wooing enough of them into his group to make it eligible to select a national convention delegates Saturday at the state convention.

He is expected to find at least some support among the uncommitteds as several indicated strong opposition to Carter.

"The people who selected me don't like Carter," one said while another added that Brown "is going to be working for us."

After the initial round in the delegate selection process in Missouri in April and early May, the uncommitted slate controlled 66 per cent of those chosen. But two days after that process was completed, 34 state party leaders headed by U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton changed their strategy from backing uncommitted delegates to backing Carter.

That switch had its effect, though not as great as the party leaders had hoped, as the uncommitted ranks fell to only 39 per cent when the 54 national convention delegates were chosen last month. Since then their strength has been slowly sapped as the Carter steamroller picked up speed.

Despite the official split of the Missouri delegation following Saturday's session, however, many officials believe the first national convention ballot will see Missouri cast at least 64 votes for Carter.

"Let's face it," one delegate said. "Jimmy Carter has it and we all have to get on the bandwagon sometime. It's just a question of when."

Ford, Reagan seek 19 Missouri delegates

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and challenger Ronald Reagan, battling for every available delegate in their closely matched race for the Republican presidential nomination, today sought Missouri's remaining 19 delegates.

The 19 at-large delegates to be selected at Missouri's GOP convention Saturday afternoon are among the more than 400 uncommitted and yet-to-be-chosen delegates to the Republican national convention in Kansas City on Aug. 16.

Missouri will send a total of 49 delegates to the convention. Of the other 30 chosen at congressional district conventions in May, 15 support Ford, 12 are for the former California governor and three are uncommitted.

"It appears to be very close," state GOP Committee Chairman Lowell McCuskey said when asked to forecast the way in which the 19 votes will be split.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, a Ford supporter, would not make a prediction.

An Associated Press survey on Thursday showed Ford with 965 of the 1,130 delegates needed for nomination and Reagan with 862.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, holding a commanding lead in the Democratic delegate race, relaxed at home today. The former Georgia governor had 1,212 publicly committed delegates as of Thursday, The AP survey showed. The Democratic National Committee's scoreboard showed him with 1,514 delegates, nine more than needed for the nomination.

The two GOP contenders scheduled receptions tonight at neighboring motels in this southwestern Missouri city. Although they will be crossing paths several times after their arrivals in late afternoon, Bond said the chances are "absolutely zero" that they would meet.

Ford's scheduled stay was limited to about four hours, while Reagan planned to address the 1,439-member state convention Saturday morning.

Illinois Republicans also will hold a state convention Saturday to choose five at-large delegates. As a result of his victory in the March 16 primary, Ford has 72 committed delegates from Illinois to 11 for Reagan and 13 uncommitted.

Carter picked up more delegates Thursday as Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania and Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia became the latest one-time candidates to endorse Carter.

Two other Democratic hopefuls — Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona — acknowledged that the race was all but over, as did Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who had said he was available for the nomination but would not actively campaign.

Carter's chief remaining rival, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., insisted Thursday that he would continue his campaign in spite of Carter's growing strength.

"I direct my campaign and I think to press forward makes a lot of sense," Brown told reporters. "I don't think it would be right to yield at this point."

Brown returned home Thursday from campaigning in Louisiana, where Gov. Edwin Edwards said 17 of the state's 19 uncommitted delegates had unanimously decided "not to jump on the Carter bandwagon."

PANAMA IN PERSPECTIVE

By Howard Flieger

It is disconcering — and disappointing in a way — that the future of the Panama Canal has become the hottest subject in the Republican presidential campaign.

This is not to say that the Canal is not important. Of course it is.

But is it of a magnitude to justify all the excitement that has been aroussed by Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford? is it worth dividing the party to the point where such conservative champions as Governor Reagan and Senator Barry Goldwater are at odds?

Viewed in the whole panorama of national politics, the Canal is a peripheral matter. And the disturbing thing is that the strident debate over its future — obviously a sensitive point with many voters — has tended to obscure other fundamental issues.

This year's campaign is an important one. The voters are entitled to hear a thoughtful discussion among those who would be President about how each would cope with the problems that beset the country.

What are the real issues?

Inflation is one. Everybody would welcome a clear presentation of blueprints for bringing it firmly under control and keeping it there. Campaign oratory on the subject to date has been superficial.

Unemployment is another.

The energy crisis is crucial, though all but ignored by the campaigners.

Welfare ranks high on the list. The public has made it clear by every means it can that it wants a solution to the waste and mismanagement at all levels.

Crime is a major issue. So is the economy. So is the Middle East. So is the future of relations with the Soviet Union. So are defense and disarmament.

And, in this context, so is the Panama Canal. But it should be kept in context. It is a bit risky to blow it up out of proportion and threaten to fight for U.S. "sovereignty."

Does anybody really believe that the American people, still bruised by their experience in Vietnam, are ready to go to war with their Latin American neighbors over the Panama Canal, or that Pamama is about to throw the United States out of the Canal Zone and take over the whole works?

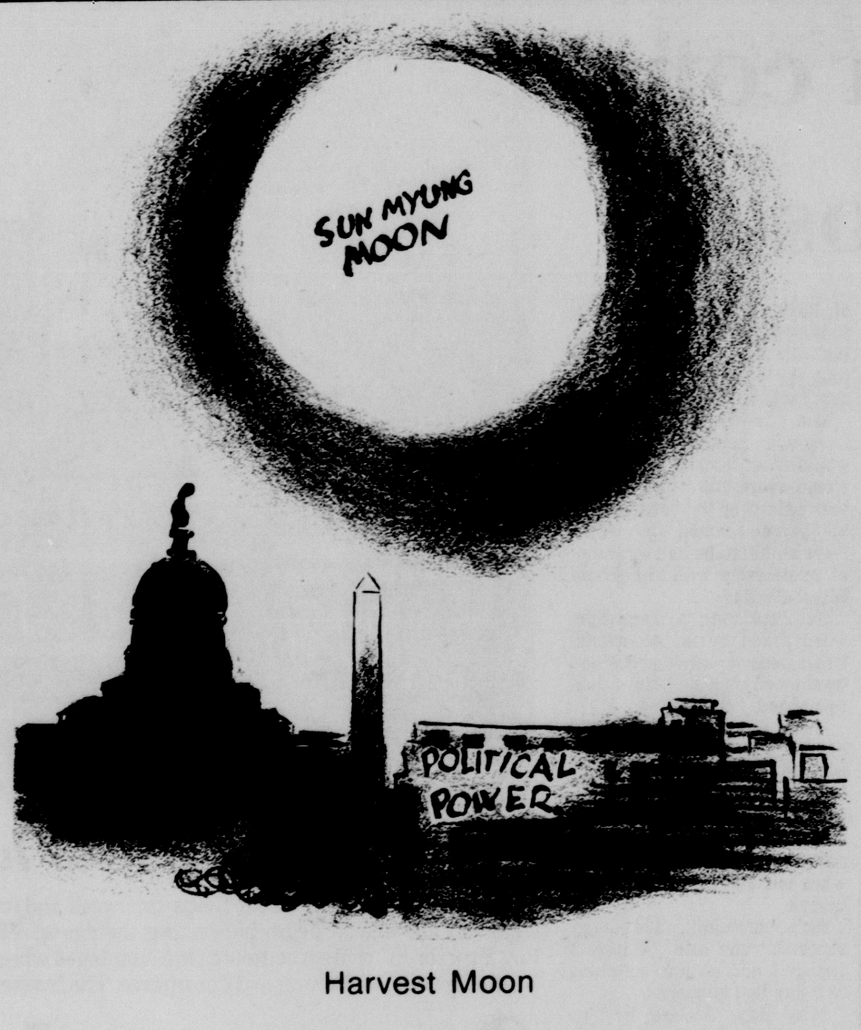

Negotiations for a new Canal treaty began long before Mr. Ford took office. The points at issue are not simple.

The Panamanians want to end U.S. rights that have been held "in perpetuity" since 1903. The United States wants control of the Canal Zone through the rest of this century, and a role in its defense thereafter. Panama wants the U.S. out by the year 2000.

It is interesting to recall the campaign of 1960 and the TV debates between Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy. There were big issues then, too, but the debates centered on two Nationalist Chinese islands — Quemoy and Matsu — and whether the U.S. would defend them if the Chinese Communists tried to capture them.

The pertinent point now is that the Chinese islands almost ran awaywith the 1960 campaign, leaving behind more important and urgent national concerns. It will be too bad if the same thing happens in the 1976 campaign over the future of the Panama Canal.

MOVIE VIOLENCE

A real leader is a person who recognizes a problem, diagnoses the situation and takes affirmative action to remedy it, even when it may be unprecedented or unpopular. Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley has given us a good demonstration of leadership by trying to do something about a major cause of the tremendous recent increase in teen-age crime.

His remedy comes to grips with the fact that violence in the movies is to the urban concentration of teen-agers, minorities and unemployed what a lighted cigarette is to a parched forest.

Just as the safety of the people allows us to prohibit a smoker from tossing his lighted cigarette butt out the car window, the safety of city dwellers requires that we stop the movie violence which panders to impressionable teen-agers with sadism, senseless brutality and unconscionable cruelty.

What Mayor Daley did was to persuade the Chicago City Council to pass an ordinance by a vote of 45 to 2 prohibiting the admission of anyone under 18 to movies which are obscene or extremely violent, including such acts as "cuttings, stabbings, floggings, eye gouging, brutal kicking and dismemberment."

The City Council heard evidence that the average teenager in Chicago sees 11,000 murders on television before he is 18.

This conditioning to brutality is then inflamed by gory violence in the movies, with blood oozing in living color.

Alderman Adeline P. Keane pinpointed the issue clearly when, in urging passage of the ordinance, she said: "Kids are mimics, and they mimic whatever they see ... when they see this violence, they are liable to act it out."

Particularly offensive are the movies of excessive violence which cater especially to the blacks and are called "black exploitation" films. A sixth-grade teacher who testified before the City Council called them "blazploitation" films because they glorify criminals, "pimps, hustlers and non-workers," thereby giving wrong role-models to young blacks.

It is to be expected that Mayor Daley and the City Council will be condemned by the pornography profiteers who want a broad interpretation of the 1st Amendment to override every other moral and constitutional value. The 1st Amendment, however,does not and should not include the right to obscenity, blasphemy, disturbing the peace or incitement to crime -- and that is exactly what these films do.

One of the specious arguments made against the new Chicago ordinance is that we should leave it to the movie industry to police itself. At the annual film festival in Cannes, France, during the last week of May, films of violence received all the prizes, despite a strong condemnation form American playwright Tennessee Williams, who was president of the jury.

Williams condemned films which "take a voluptuous pleasure in spilling blood and in lingering on terrible cruelties as though one were at a Roman circus." He said that "watching violence on the screen is a brutalizing experience for the spectator."

The film selected for the top trophy at the Cannes Film Festival was "Taxi Driver." Last month a Chicago youth saw this very movie, and then went out and shot up a Northwet Side convent.

The same rights that permit us to restrict teen-age drinking, drug use, driving and marriage permit us to prohibit movies which incite teen-agers to criminal violence. Mayor Daley's courageous action should be initiated in other big cities with the problem of escalating teen-age crime.

NEW JUSTICE FOR OLDEST SETTLERS?

When the Indian signed treaties in the 19th century that were to last "as long as the grass grows and the rivers run," he didn't foresee the white man's 20th-century technology, which can change the rivers in their courses or slow them to a trickle.

An area of central Arizona, which has been irrigated and farmed by American Indians for 2,000 years, according to archeological estimates, is gradually reverting to arid desert. For 30,000 Pima, Papago and Mohave-Apache Indians, organized into five tribal communities, it has become a question of how much longer they will be able to grow grass or any other crop with the water they have left.

This tragedy, which has changed once-prosperous, self-sufficient Indian farmers into destitute, welfare-dependent people, was brought about by the theft of their water in violation of rights supposedly guaranteed them by the U.S. government, charges the Association on American Indian Affairs.

For the past 100 years, says the association, the Department of the Interior has repeatedly subverted treaties, statutes, executive orders and federal court decisions to the benefit of commercial and industrial interests and non-Indian farmers.

Now at last, following lengthy hearings last October by the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, a bill has been introduced in the Senate to settle once and for all the complex question of the water rights of the five tribes "and to promote their economic self-sufficiency through farming and irrigated agriculture." This is S.3298, introduced by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Essentially, the bill would authorize and direct the Secretary of the Interior to acquire, at fair market value, about 170,000 acres of lands in central Arizona with surface water rights and transfer these rights to the tribes in satisfaction of their present and future right to the use of water for farming purposes.

The acquisition would take place over a number of years, allowing ample time for the amortization of investments and orderly decisions on the part of non-Indian water users.

The alternative is protracted litigation in the courts, which would also take many years, Kennedy points out, with resultant hardship and uncertainty for both non-Indian and Indian water users.

The plight of 30,000 Indians may be of little moment to 210 million other Americans, but the fact is that taxpayers are now spending $60 million a year to keep these still proud people on welfare they do not want.

At the same time, the government proposes to spend $1 billion to rescue no more than 151 white-owned farms, whose run-off has been contributing to the pollution of the lower Colorado. This is the estimated construction and operating cost of the Wellton-Mowhawk desalinization plant designed to fulfill treaty obligations with Mexico regarding Colorado River quality.

Under S.3298, the Secretary of the Interior would also be authorized to retire these farms, paying just compensation to their owners, and the expensive desalinization plant would not be necessary.

S.3298 "could well be the most important piece of American Indian natural resource legislation ever passed," says the Association on American Indian Affairs, "and celebrate this Bicentennial year with the start of a new era of justice for our first Americans."

HOW MANY WILL HEALTH CARE BENEFIT?

Some form of national health insurance is probably still several years away, but a number of people are already wondering about the possible consequences of a program designed to deliver the greatest amount of health care to the greatest number.

As one of them expresses it, "If you take health care in the strong sense, there is always going to be greater demand than supply...How in the world can you give everybody access to expensive, exotic treatments?"

The questioner is Daniel Callahan, founder of the Institute of Society, Ethics and Life Sciences at Hastings-on-the Hudson, New York. Congress, he notes in an interview in U.S. Catholic magazine, has already passed a bill underwriting hemodialysis (kidney machine treatment) for everyone, "no matter what the costs."

But there are a lot of other similarly "catastrophic" illnesses, and as medical science advances, there are going to be more and more cures or treatments which inevitably will entail very large expenditures.

The prospect of an artificial heart, which is probably going to be developed in the next few years, will pose great problems, says Callahan. He estimates that 500,000 people right now could use an artificial heart, and that each heart would cost about $20,000 initially, with an annual maintenance expense of $5,000 to $10,000. "The figures become astronomical."

Mental health, which "includes people vaguely unhappy, neurotic and dissatisfied with life," is a "bottomless pit," he says. The wealthy pay psychologists $50 an hour to help them cope with that sort of thing. But if the wealthy can afford it, should everybody have the right?

Callahan is not the first to have raised such questions. John Lach, professor of philosophy at Vanderbilt University, recently warned that "It will not be long before we shall have to make some rational decisions about how much of our social wealth is to be spent on extraordinary measures to keep the older members of our population alive...

"We may well find that the amount of money we can plow into making advanced medical technology available for all is more limited than even the most pessimistic among us fear."

To many people, however, all this may seem like borrowing problems that may or may not materialize and which in any case cannot be solved until we actually encounter them. The primary purpose of national health insurance, after all, is not to give everyone who needs one an artificial heart or a kidney machine or some other exotic treatment, but to extend the routine, ordinary health care that now exists to those who, for financial or other reasons, do not or cannot avail themselves of it.

In this respect, the experiences of other countries should be instructive. Britain, for example, has had comprehensive cradle-to-grave health insurance since after World War II. We have heard no reports about agonizing choices having to be made between treating the aged or the hopelessly ill as opposed to the young or less acutely ill.

Rather, what has ballooned the proportions and costs of Britain's system and, according to some charges, actually brought about a deterioration of the general level of health care, has not been the problem of catastrophic illnesses but the sheer cumulative effect of millions of daily, routine medical visits and treatments.

There is really only one thing we can be sure of: Whatever kind of national health insurance program, if any, the United States adopts, it is going to cost money.

THE GREATEST SERVICE

Controlling inflation requires the curbing of government deficit spending and the adoption of measures to stimulate the initiative and productivity of private enterprise. In spite of these warnings, the bureaucracy of big government rolls on, constantly threatening to crush the sources of its own sustenance and the liberties of U.S. citizens. Now a measure is proposed to put the government into the electric power transmission business.

Commenting on this, the president of a taxpaying, investor-owned power company asserts, "The creation of a federally-owned national electrical transmission system would be an unwarranted expenditure of the taxpayer's money. The United States is presently supplied with electric power over extensive transmission networks more highly interconnected than any other such network elsewhere in the world....In the fourth quarter of 1973, only seven interruptions of bulk power supply were reported to the Federal Power Commission....All of them were confined to the service area of single systems–the longest was for three hours. Ice and windstorms were the cause of four of these outages....Any ownership restructuring of the electric power industry cannot be justified on the basis of need...."

Such a move by the federal government would also further undermine confidence of investors in the future of the American business system upon which the well-being and livelihood of everyone depends. The greatest service to the country which Congress can now perform would be to put the house of government in order and get off the backs of private citizens who must somehow keep the wheels of production and distribution turning.

COMPANY PAYS A HIGH PRICE

Companies conducting surveys of regulatory impact are uncovering "provocative facts," Armco Steel Corp. revealed in its 1975 annual report. Armco noted "we must obtain licenses or permits from at least 379 different agencies—federal, state and local. We must submit reports to 1,245 more. Still another 1,026 agencies require regular correspondence from us."

The agencies won't compromise for common sense solutions as this Armco experience proves: "One of our plants pays a special tax of less than $10 a year on its heavy trucks. Making the reports to pay this $10 tax cost us $1,240 in 1975. We tried to simplify things by offering to pay a flat $25 fee instead of $10—and skip the report. Our offer was refused. So the cost of $1,240 for a tax of less than $10 continues."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Big Apple on Spit:
Average city employe costs cashless New York almost $30,000 a year

NEW YORK— So you can understand why the Big Apple is being roasted, I report that top U.S. Treasury officials, who now control the financial lifeline of this almost bankrupt Babylon, estimate it costs New York City an average of some $30,000 a year to pay and "to fringe" each municipal employe.

This compares with an average of $13,000 to $14,000 annual maintenance of each federal civil servant.

The startling New York City employe average labor cost comes from Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and his Deputy Assistant Secretary Robert Gerard, in the Office of Undersecretary for Monetary Affairs. In effect, Gerard is account executive in charge of monitoring New York City's ability to repay the $2.3 billion which the federal government is lending the big town so it can avert default.

In all, New York City's annual payroll tops $7 billion. Of this at least $2 billion is paid into the gargantuan civil service pension systems each year. Payouts of $12,000 to $30,000 in annual pensions are as ordinary as uncollected garbage.

A special temporary commission on city finances, appointed by the besieged Mayor Abe Beame, comes in with a figure slightly lower than the federal government's. But its estimate of $26,700 a year as average gross outlay for a city employe is based on two-month-old figures. Since then there have been routine pay and fringe increases despite the city's churchmouse coffers.

Few are aware that this city, on which so much of the national economy depends, not to mention the liquidity of several score banks, puts out $35,288 a year for the average firefighter. This is more than twice the firemen's base pay. As for senior clerks, they cost the $12.5 billion annual budget $18,952 a year. This is 170 per cent of their base pay. One tiny item: hundreds of city workers receive allowances for uniforms though they're not required to wear them.

Few realize the city has been running one of the world's biggest universitites. Tuition for its 270,000 students has been free.

And few dare challenge the open enrollment policy which has brought idling and marauding youth bands, dope-peddling teenagers and just garden variety loafers who terrorize their instructors and staffs, into the weird City University of New York (CUNY). Certainly there are fine students in the 20-college CUNY. But in the words of an authority in the chancellery, "There are thousands of bums in our so-called classes and corridors whom no one dares fail nor ask to quit or move on."

Some of this was discussed by President Ford with his economic advisers in the White House cabinet room Thursday morning, June 3. Secretary Simon answered his queries. Then the Treasury chief briefed the chief executive, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, et al., on the reasons he (Simon) is considering refusing to lend New York City $1.1 billion which Mayor Beame expects beginning July 1.

That's a few days before municipal labor chiefs, in and out of the uniformed services, are threatenting to strike a Democratic convention-laden city.

Simon later told a caller that he was "shocked" by the on-air profanity hurled at him by Victor Gotbaum, executive director of the big (108,000 member) District Council 37, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. This was a reference to a scatalogical suggestion to Simon by Gotbaum.

The Secretary of the Treasury says that he (Simon) is determined to cut off the $1.1 billion this July "with all that this implies" if Gotbaum's organization or any other union increases the cost of New York City government by raising the wage-fringe bill in any fashion.

On Thursday, the Secretary, after having briefed President Ford on the possibility of throwing the city into bankruptcy, began writing his retort to Gotbaum. The "bottom line," Simon told me, would be simple: if the city's wage bill goes up, New York won't get a billion federal dollars in July – or later.

Gotbaum and his associate director Lillian Roberts, one of the most articulate and militant blacks inside labor, have been in a red-hot verbal war with the city authorities. Gotbaum has said there will be wage increases in some fashion. Maybe a cost of living. But certainly more money. And the deadline appears to be July 1 when the heavy contracts expire for most of the 235,000 municipal employes.

"I'll break the law – make no bones about it," Gotbaum has warned. Also he said he wouldn't respect a court injunction. And he has charged one of his official critics with being "an inveterate liar." He hit another city official as "stupid ... incompetent... and dishonest." Roberts has called the city Health and Hospital Corporation president "the enemy."

Simon says his own move isn't political. It's the law. An examination of the "Credit Agreement by and among the U.S.A. and State of N.Y. and City of N.Y. and N.Y.S. Emergency Financial Control Board" shows that Simon has the unilateral power to cut the city off from federal funds.

Thus the state, the city, the White House, the Treasury and an extraordinarily pungent and powerful labor leader face each other with July 1 as the red line–crisscrossing one of the most dramatic political moments in decades, the Democratic national convention.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON -- Uncle Sam has paid out millions in educational benefits to Vietnam War veterans who pocketed most of the money and then played hookey.

Legitimate students have collected millions more in overpayments, which were mistakenly disbursed because of sloppy bookeeping. So far, the government has recovered only about 80 per cent.

The figures are staggering. The overpayments amount to more than $1.4 billion. By the end of June, it is estimated the Treasury will still be short $376 million which it has been unable to recover.

No one really knowns, on the other hnad, how many veterans have been collecting educational benefits without bothering to go to school. But at one community college alone, investigators found that the taxpayers had spent over $3.7 million for the education of verterans who didn't attend classes.

A year ago, we reported that students were collecting overpayments and bogus benefits underr the GI bill. The House Veterans Committee, meanwhile, ordered the General Accounting Office to investigate. Here are the findings of the GAO and the committee staff:

Nine years ago, the Veterans Administration overpaid educational benefits by a trifling seven-tenths of one per cent. The rate now has reached an alarming 15.6 per cent. At the end of 1975, the overpayments totaled $1.4 billion.

The GAO study found that too much money had been paid to veterans under the GI bill because the schools were slow in reporting dropouts and because the Veterans Administration's "processing practices" were "poor."

As we reported last year, many veterans have taken advantage of a lax law, which was intended to permit veterans to begin their education without waiting around for the wherewithal. Under the law, the government benefit checks must be sent out before the veterans start their classes.

Some veterans have stayed home from school and have used the benefits to line their pockets at the taxpayers' expense. Many colleges, particularly community colleges, are willing to keep the absent veterans on their rolls, because the bigger the enrollment, the more state support they can claim.

At the Florida Junior College in Jacksonville, for example, House investigators found a startling number of Vietnam veterans on the rolls whose transcripts showed they hadn't been studying.

One had been carried as a student since 1969. He had enrolled in 32 courses without earning a single credit. Yet the school permitted him to remain enrolled, and he drew a minimum of $270 a month from the taxpayers the whole time.

After the visit from the House investigators, the school hastily reviewed its records and dropped 25 per cent of the veterans from its student body. This should save the taxpayers at least $3.75 million.

The same story has been repeated around the country. A VA audit team at Northern Virginia Community College, for example, turned up "discrepancies" in literally thousands of cases. The "potential liability" in 831 of the cases was estimated at $768,920,09.

Footnote: The VA is trying to tighten its procedures to avoid the overpayments and to increase its collections.

HORSE ABUSE: The world's most famous horses, the Lipizzan Stallions, have been cruelly abused on their current U.S. tour.

Sworn affidavits and taped statements, documenting the brutality, have been turned over to Us. Employes who have worked with the horses have also told us stories of repeated negligence and mistreatment.

The Lipizzan Stallions, whose ancestors were carefully bred by royal families of the 17th century, have appeared in several movies. Their dramatic rescue from Austria during World War II was featured in a Walt Disney movie, "Miracle of the White Stallions."

Here are a few typical allegations about how the beautiful animals are now treated in the "Wonderful World of Horses" show --- allegations which the management denies as "absolutely false."

-- When a trailer wheel broke last month, the panicky stallions kicked and bit each other severely. The horses that could still perform had white shoe polish spread over their open wounds, according to witnesses, so the spectators wouldn't see the injuries. The show's director, John Finley, insisted that only baby powder and zinc ointment had been applied.

-- Former employes told of one horse being spurred until it bled profusely, another horse being whipped to the ground, still other horses being beaten with heavy chains and rubber hoses. "Not true," said the director.

-- The vans which haul the horses from city to city are in such miserable condition, it is also alleged, that they cause injury to the horses. Finley acknowledged that repairs have had to be made but denied that the equipment has injured any horses.

-- Former employes also complained that the horses were kept in trucks up to three days without exercise. "A total lie," responded Finley.

-- A year ago, a company truck turned over, burst into flames and burned alive the driver and four horses. Former employes swear the director had been warned repeatedly that the fuel hose was leaking. Finley said that he had never received any such warning and that investigators were unable to determine the cause of the accident.

WHEN WAXING ENERGY WANES

Tempted by the wax-in-the-time-it-takes-to-dust aerosols? Well here's some good news and some bad news. The bad news is this: using spray waxes, although swift and speedy, can damage the finish on your furniture and make refinishing enormously difficult. The culprit is silicones, whether the label says so or not.

The good news: a paste-wax job, although it requires more time and energy to do it, not only looks better but also lasts longer. Best news of all: with paste, you need only wax genuine hardwood furniture twice a year. Genuine hardwood is much less fragile than many people think.

In the "look better" department, just compare a paste-waxed piece of furniture with one that has been given aerosol treatments over any period of time. The sprayed piece will have a glossy sheen that hides the beauty of the wood itself. No longer will you be able to see (or feel) the warmth of the living tree; the soft, beautiful designing done by Mother Nature herself. On the other hand, furniture lovingly treated to paste-waxing will have retained the beauty for which you originally chose furniture of genuine hardwood. The open grain pattern of handsome hardwoods like oak and pecan will still be visible; you'll still be able to enjoy the more subtle nuances of grain- and color-patterns in cherry, maple and others.

To get longer-lasting waxings, follow these simple steps:

1. Be sure the piece is thoroughly clean to start with. One of the beauties of genuine hardwood is that it can be washed with soap and water, using a dampened (not soaked) cloth or sponge. After rinsing away all traces of soap, let the piece dry for at least a half hour, after towelling.

2. To make application easier and smoother, use a slightly dampened cloth, and only a small amount of paste-wax—just enough to leave a thin film of wax on the cloth. Apply the wax to the furniture in the same direction as the grain of the wood, covering an area up to two feet at a time.

3. Let the wax set for a few minutes, but only a few, so it doesn't get a chance to cake. Then buff it with a clean, dry cloth.

4. Move on to the next two-feet-square section and repeat the process.

Between semi-annual waxings, you should dust frequently and if necessary clean your furniture with a non-oily cleaning polish or soap-and-water sponge bath. If cleaning is required more than four or five times between waxings, you may decide to wax more often—but under normal conditions, this ought not to be necessary.

The whole process is simply a matter of substituting frequency time for per-job time. And the bonus is keeping your beautiful hardwood furniture looking its best.

Cover charge is a party no-no

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My sister-in-law and I are planning a 30th wedding anniversary party for our parents. The problem is we want to send them to Hawaii and that is so expensive. We are wondering if it would be socially acceptable to have a dinner dance and charge twenty dollars a couple. If not what would be the solution. We are stumped. —L.G.M.

DEAR L.G.M. — I am no Emily Post nor Amy Vanderbilt but I do know you should not proceed with plans for a dinner dance that would cost the guests to come. A cover charge might keep away many who would really want to come that your parents would like to see. I well understand your thoughtfulness in wanting your parents to have that great trip, but stick to a party and gift that you can afford. It is the getting together with relatives and old friends, in a festive atmosphere, that really counts. I am sure they would be thrilled if you could have some of the guests who were at their wedding or even some of the wedding party. —POLLY.

Child photographer says games win smiles

NEW YORK (AP) — Two pennies can make all the difference between a good photograph of your child — and a great one, says Dino Semprini, the owner of a portrait studio here and a noted photographer of children.

According to him, the pose conveys the feeling you want to impart in your photograph. Since the difficulty lies in coaxing an active youngster to maintain one position the few seconds needed for the photograph, Semprini plays games.

"I place two bright, shiny pennies on the floor," he says, "and I challenge the child to keep each covered with a foot. It works every time."

He has other methods for achieving good results. Since "involved" children are more photogenic, he has toys and games on hand to help strike lively, responsive moods. He also has tall props, such as stuffed animals, so the child remains preoccupied.

The parent is another attention-getter he uses to maintain interest. "The presence of mother or father reduces fears of unfamiliar surroundings," he says. "At the same time, the parent can coax different facial expressions, if they are needed."

And he takes plenty of poses. "The amateur often stops clicking when he thinks he has it. The pro keeps on shooting until he knows he has it," he declares.

Ann Landers

Cat's got her tongue

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is one I have never read about in your column nor have I ever heard it mentioned by anyone else.

I find it impossible to call my husband by his name when I am speaking to him. I don't use any endearing substitutes either, such as "honey" or "dear." I just don't call him anything.

When I was younger I had the same problem with another man for whom I cared deeply. Is it emotional? Can you explain why I'm like this? How can I get over it? Thanks for any help you can give me. – Short Circuit In Sandusky

Dear S.C.: According to Dr. Harold Visotsky, Director of the Institute of Psychiatry at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, there may be one of two reasons for your "problem," depending on how you feel about your husband.

If you have a warm and loving relationship, your inability to call him by his name is an attempt to deny this close relationship with the purpose of protecting it against a possible loss.

If you feel some deep-seated resentment against him, some hidden anger perhaps, your refusal to address him by name is your way of keeping him at arm's length.

So, look inside, honey, and take your pick.

Dear Ann: I must make a big decision and you've got to help me.

My best friend and her husband asked if I would look after her little boy when she and her husband went on vacation. I said yes -- thinking it would be a week or so.

Yesterday Katie came over to discuss their plans. Suddenly she said, "Do you think you could water my plants when we're gone? Six weeks is a long time for plants to go without water."

I asked, "SIX WEEKS?" She said, "yes, it wouldn't pay to take trip like that for a shorter time."

When I found my tongue I explained that my husband's vacation begins on the 15th and we were taking our four children across country in a camper. "Well," Katie shot back, "you can take Jimmie along. He'd love it!" I almost dropped my teeth.

My husband says he doesn't want their child on our vacation and allowed as how it was lot of guts for anyone to leave a kid with friends for six weeks. I hate to lose her friendsip. What should I do? – Unglued In Carolina

Dear Carolina: Glue yourself together and say: "We'll take Jimmie for X number of days, but when we leave for our vacation, you'll have to make other plans. Our camper can just barely accommodate our own family."

If the friendship falls apart you may be lucky. She sounds like a very brassy lady to me.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15-year-old girl who needs some answers. I learned from your column that alcoholism is a sickness. What about fathers who cheat? Is that a sickness, too?

Ever since my mother told me Daddy has been having an affair with a woman he works with I find it hard to be decent to him. I'd feel better if I thought he was "sick." What about it? – B. C. Girl

Dear B.C.: In a way it is sick, so consider it as such and try to be civil. Too bad your mother told you. She should have unloaded her anger and frustration on a counselor or clergyman and left you out of it.

Former Sikeston resident Mike Lee has recently entered the field of music evangelism full time. Previously, he was director of public relations for Central Technical Community College Area in Grand Island, Neb.

In explaining his decision for entering the field of evangelism, Lee stated:

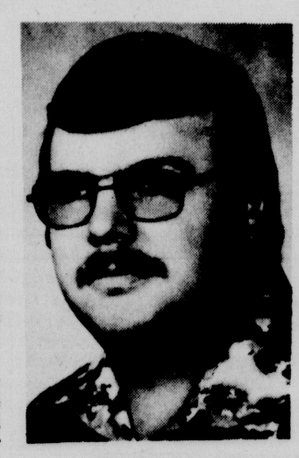

"I first accepted Christ as my Saviour some 18 years ago. But it was only a short time back that I realized that I wasn't giving everything to Him . About a year ago, I felt a strong calling from the Lord to enter the field of music evangelism and the Lord, being the persistent peson that He is, didn't let the feeling go away, and it has stayed with me ever since.

"About six months ago, I finally said, 'Here I am, Lord. I think this is what you want me to do, and I'm in Your hands.'

"Since that time, many wonderful things have happened to me and my family. The Lord has led Hallie (my wife) and me through many trying times, and each time we've come through victorious and more entrenched in our relationship with the Holy Spirit. The knowledge that the Lord wants me to enter this field is stronger now than ever before."

A native of Sikeston, Lee is the son of Mrs. Margaret Lee, 314 Hardin St., and the late Ronald Lee, who was city collector for several years prior to his death.

Lee is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau and formerly was music director and moderator of First Baptist Church at Hastings, Neb. He has appeared in numerous concerts and revival crusades in Nebraska and Missouri. His first record, with Rainbow Sound Studios of Dallas, Tex., will be released later this summer.

Mike Lee

Prior to moving to Nebraska, Lee served as band director of Richland High School at Essex and was news director of radio station KSIM in Sikeston.

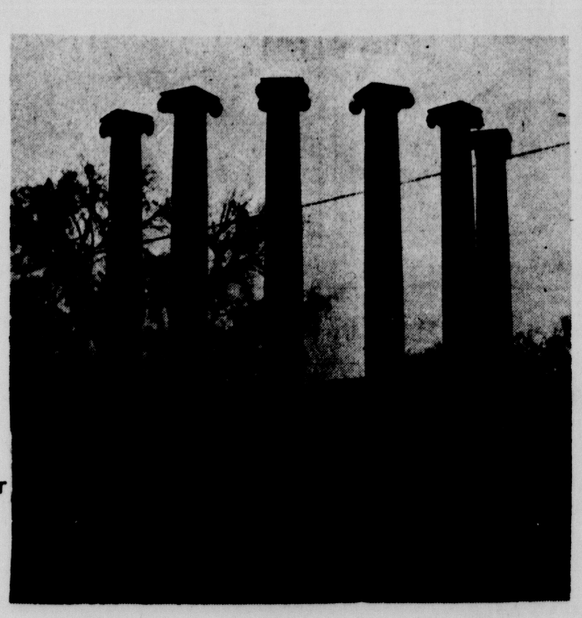

Lee will appear in area churchs in July and is available for sacred concerts, revivals, crusades or any other type program where his musical talent can be used for the Lord.

He may be contacted by writing to Mike Lee Evangelistic Association, 416 N. Custer, Grand Island, Neb. 68801 or to P. O. Box 115, Sikeston, Mo. 63801, or by calling Nebraska phone number 308-381-1594 or 471-0115 in Sikeston.

"This is the day which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it." (Psalm 118:24, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, open our eyes to the beauty and the needs around us, and help us to be responsive to both. Amen.

Church Participation Sunday slated in Malden

MALDEN — The Malden Bicentennial Committee jhas designated July 4 as Church Participation Sunday, according to Virginia Towery, chairwoman of the committee.

The committee hopes that the churches and other religious organizations will become involved in the Bicentennial celebration and make Church Participation Sunday a city-wide event.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

On this date:

In 1727, King George the First of England died.

In 1940, Princesss Juliana of the Netherlands arrived in Canada as an exile during World War Two.

In 1963, Alabama Governor George Wallace stepped aside to permit Blacks to register at the University of Alabama in Montgomery as the federalized National Guard stood by.

In 1964, Greece rejected direct talks with Turkey over the future of the island of Cyprus.

In 1970, U.S. military prsence in Libya ended 19 days ahead of schedule when the last American detachment left Wheelus Air Force Base.

Ten years ago: Fresh American troops moved into forward positions for new assaults against a battered but stubborn North Vietnamese unit in South Vietnam's Central Highlands.

Five years ago: Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev called for an end to the arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One year ago: The U.S. Senate confirmed the nomination of former Gov. Stanley Hathaway of Wyoming as secretary of the interior.

Proposed county health center meeting brought no surprises

BLOOMFIELD — A meeting of supporters of countywide health centers held no surprises Thursday afternoon as none of the approximately 15 persons present spoke out against even though a number of questions were asked.

The meeting was conducted by Bernie Mayor R. B. Woods and chairman of a committee seeking approval of a 10-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax levy in a special election on June 22.

He told the small group that a health center program provided by the state on a trial basis has served a need in the county but that if the proposal is defeated, the program will cease.

"The program is there," he said. "No critic that I know of has used any service. Nobody who has used any of the services has objected to it."

The temporary health center now in use was set up in November 1974 with $29,000 provided by the state for a two-year period. If the proposal is approved at the polls, the revenue generated in the first year will be about $72,000.

The large amount of revenue generated was defended by saying that it would take a large amount initially to set up the program and that the tax rate can be lowered by the health center board of trustees which will oversee the operation.

If approved, a five-member board will be elected and will decide where to construct a building to house the facilities, establish guidelines for its operation and set the tax rate.

This was pointed out a number of times during the meeting. One person asked if the sanitarian hired by the center would inspect grocery stores and restaurants.

The answer: This, too, would depend upon what the board of trustees decides.

Literature provided by supporters says functions of a health center could include blood pressure clinics, immunizations, family planning clinics, nutritional programs, home visits and venereal disease conferences.

Voters in the county have defeated similar proposals in the past but supporters keep trying. A similar situation exists in Cape Girardeau County.

One person present at the meeting suggested that in Cape County the proposal has met defeat a number of times due to landowners who do not want to be taxed.

In Southeast Missouri, only Stoddard, Cape Girardeau and Ste. Genevieve counties have no center, but Cape and Ste. Genevieve counties have nursing services.

It was suggested that since the state provides vaccines free of charge, if the county has no health center, it will be paying to help other counties in the state without getting any help for themselves.

Woods pointed out the services will be available to all Stoddard Countians and not just low-income families.

The election later this month will be paid for by supporters of the proposal who have provided volunteers to work at the polling places.

bruised and contused. The suit also says she suffered injury to her left knee which resulted in the loss of the patella and suffered fractures to her pelvis.

The suit further states that all injuries are severe, permanent and progressive that the injuries required her to be hospitalized and that in the future she will require further mtreatment by doctors and incur additional medical expense.

Counts three and four of the suit are against Towell Count three asks $200,000 for the death of Daugherty and count four asks $250,000 for personal injury to Mrs. Daugherty.

Another suit filed in behalf of Kevin Schwartz by Anna Mae Meyer, seeks $200,000 for personal injuries and damages from Bishop Bernard F. Law and Richard Snelson, representing Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church and Ben Harmon, Rosemary Ross, Marvin LeGrand, Sylvester Asmus, Iris Crowe and Elmer Enderle, board members of the St. Ambrose Catholic School in Chaffeee.

Suit alleges that on Oct. 1, 1974, Kevin Schwartz, was participating in a recess class under the direction of Richard Snelson and was playing near an upright bolleyball standard and that the volleyball standard fell onto or struck him causing severe and permanent injuries.

The suit further alleges that Snelson failed to direct, supervise and observe Schwartz at play to keep him from coming into the close proximity of the dangerous upright volleyball standard. That Snelson was negligent in that he permitted the volleyball standard be used in such a manner that it was likely to strike or cause injury to persons occupying the playground.

The suit alleges that the members of the school board were negligent in that they did not provide an adequate number of supervisors for the class, that they were negligent in that they permitted the moving of the bolleyball standard by children when they knew or should have known injury could occur.

Schwartz was struck in the head by the volleyball pole receiving a brain concussion and a permanent loss of hearing in one ear. The suit claims he has and will continue to lose rest, sleep and the use and function of the injured ear, in the future.

Suit asks for judgement in the amount of $200,000 for the injuries and damages.

A breach of warranty and damages suit totaling $29,850 was filed Tuesday against the Anderson Corp. of Bayport, Minn. Manufacturers of Perma Shield Windows, by C. L. Blanton III. and Cherie L. Blanton of Sikeston.

The suit alleges that windows manufactured by the Anderson Corp were installed in a new home being constructed for the Blanton's. The suit alleges the windows were found to be defective and unfit and that as a result the home sustained extensive deterioration resulting in extensive repair and reworking of the entire house.

Because the windows were improperly and defectively designed, the home sustained damages and the couple seeks judgement in the amount of $9,950.

Count two asks $9,950 because the windows were not fit and proper for the use in their homes as had been promised.

Count three alleges breach of warranty and seeks judgement in the amount of $9,950.

election date, or until April of 1978, since the length of terms normally are staggered according to the number of votes received.

The alderman receiving the highest number of votes is installed for a two-year term and the one receiving the second highest vote serves a one-year term. Two aldermen from each ward will be elected. Those running for mayor are elected at large.

Candidates for mayor and alderman must be one-year residents of the city. There are no restrictions on candidates for the offices of collector, police chief and police judge at present, according to Potashnick. However, the council indicated it would like an ordinanace drawn up placing the same restrictions on all candidates.

Carter reported that he had received calls from residents concerning water approved signs not being erected at the city limits. It was pointed out that since it is mandatory that all cities have approved water, the health department no longer provides or erects theses signs. East Prairie's water system has been approved more than a year and a half.

The council agreed to table salary increases for city employes until the new board is elected.

Liquor license renewals approved included: Anita Louis Griggs, 115 East Main St. and Larry Smith, 501 East Main St., 5 per cent beer; Hugh A. Treadway, 728 East Washington Drive, James H. Owens, East Washington Drive, P. W. Brown, 109 East Main St. and Bill Yeager, 607 East Main St. packaged liquor.

In routine business the council approved expenditures of $11,195.76 for May; collectors report of $29,129.69 and the police judge report showing $925.45 in fines assessed during May.

Little leaguers score lots of runs

High scoring was the story of the night in the Sikeston Little League Thursday evening. The winning team in each of the six games played scored at least ten runs, with the smallest margin of victory being five markers.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pizza Inn smacked Lewis Furniture 15-3 and Legion buried the Lions 12-1 in National League action Thursday night.

Pizza Innnused the pitching of Mike Moore and the other eight players big bats to win the game. They scored five runs in the first two innings off loser Davis and added eight more in the fourth to ice the game. Moore held Lewis to only three hits. Steven Green was the leading hitter in the game with 3-for-3 for Pizza Inn.

Howard held the Lions to only one hit while this treammates were collecting 13 safeties off loser Lee Allcock. John Watkins homered in the third inning for Legion.Gary Grojean had the only hit for Lions.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

In the American League Thursday night Fabick outlasted Righter 14-9 and Ziegenhorn bombed Moores Firestone 20-5.

Fabick blasted out 21 hits while Righter banged out 23. Stinnett picked up the victory while Lee suffered the loss.

Fabick jumped to a 4-0 lead after three innings but a six run uprising by Righter put them ahead 6-5 after four innings. Both teams had their hitting clothes on and neither pitcher could do much in the way of silencing their opponents bats. Righter scored three runs in the sixth inning and looked as if they would be the winners but Fabick rallied for nien runs in the last inning to pull the game out.

John Stewart, Keith Yates, Hindman and Stinnett rapped out three hits apiece for Fabick. Sherman, VanPool and Ruby collected four hits apiece for Righter.

Ziegenhorn wasted no time getting to losing pitcher Jim Goergen as they scored 17 runs in the first three innings in the rout. Moores Firestone scored all five of their runs in the second. Priday led the winners at bat with 4-for-4. Goergan collected both of Moores Firestone's safeties.

Hitters rule JBR

Hitters took over Jr. Babe Ruth League action at the Sports Complex Thursday when Nowell held off Bank of Sikeston 12-8 and Davis and Bird outlasted Eagles 19-18.

A seven run fifth inning boosted Bank of Sikeston to their win. Reliever Kerry Northcutt picked up the win.

Johnny Longstreet led Nowell with a double and a triple. Doug Lucy also rapped a two base hit for the winners. Kenny Spitler and Scott McDowell had doubles for Bank.

Teammates Russell Deal and Marty Nelson both fanned their first time up against the Eagles Club, but, from there on, made their opponents pay. Each player had two doubles and a homer and they accounted for 12 runs batted in between them. Deal was four- for- five with five runs scored and Nelson was five-for- six with four runs scored as the Davis and Bird team held off the Eagles 19-18 . Steve Burgess belted two triples for the winners.

When Chris Launius was gunned down at the plate carrying the tying run, the Eagles' bottom of the seventh rally fell short.

Launius was the loser and Nelson picked up the win in relief.

Saints host Anna Saturday

The Sikeston Saints look to righthander Bobby Blankenship for a win against anna, Illinois, in an 8 p.m. Bi-State League game tonight at V.F.W. Stadium. Blankenship has the only Saints win, an 8-5 decision over Anna just under two weeks ago. The Sikeston team has a league mark of 1-3.

"We need more consistency in our play," said team manager Tom Masterson, recently. The Saints have erred 15 times in four games.

And, the hitting hasn't been there to overcome the defensive shortcomings. As a team the Saints are stroking a collective .230.

Things don't look much brighter on the horizon for the Sikeston hitters. The probable starting hurler for Anna in the Friday night game is hard-throwing lefty Dana Pearson, a product of Murray (Ky.) State.

Infielders Rick Eisenbach and Grant Dambach will become available to the team sometime this weekend, but probably not for the Anna game. The two recently concluded their college baseball season when SEMO University - Cape fell just short in the college World Series. Both will probably play in Sunday's game at Ste. Genevieve. Eisenbach is expected to play in tonight's game, but personal matters may interfere.

If the slick- fielding infielder is on the scene, the Sikeston lineup will look like this:

1ST Bruce Lawrence, CF	.125
2ND Bill Schatzley, SS	.375
3RD Rick Eisenbach, 3B	.....
4TH Less Schatzley, RF	.143
5TH Jeff Jackson, DH	.214
6TH Jim Saulter, 1B	.176
7TH Kenny Urhahn, 2B	.200
8TH Charlie Miller, C	.000
9TH Mitch Walker, LF	.333

PITCHER Bob Blankenship, 1-1

For Parents 'n Teachers

This section of The Mini Page is especially designed for parents and teachers to use with this week's Mini Page.

Page 1: Hang this page in a prominent spot. Have the children discuss the different kinds of birds. Put a check when you observe one of them. A very good, beautifully illustrated book in color to order is: "Fifty Birds of Town and Country," written and illustrated by Bob Hines, Peter A. Anastasi, associate editor. This book is published by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Costs: $1.20 paperbound or $4 clothbound. Send your order to: U.S. Government Printing Office, Public Documents Distribution Center, Pueblo, Col. 81009. (Make check or money order to Superintendent of Documents.)

Page 2: Birds You're Bound to See: Talk about how the two jays are different. Be on the look-out for birds in this page.

Page 3: The Problem Bird: Talk about the starlings and why they are disliked. Ask your child to read the paragraph and then give three reasons why these birds are undesirable.

Birds you'll spot alot!

Blue Jay

Scrub Jay

Many species or bird families do not live in every part of the country. Blue jays live in the east, except in Florida. Scrub jays live in the west. How are they different?

Bluebirds

Bluebirds are not as common as they used to be. Starlings have chased many from their nests. They nest in old trees or in holes in buildings. They eat insects and vegetables (6 in. long).

Flickers

Flickers live in open country and parks. They have yellow (light orange in the west) under surfaces. Flickers eat more ants than any other bird (13 in. long).

Meadowlarks

Meadowlarks are often seen in fields and on fences. They have yellow breasts. Their song is pretty, too (8½ in. long).

Song Sparrows

These sparrows have pretty songs. Their breasts are streaked (5½ in. long).

Birds You're Bound to See

There are many kinds of birds. Here are a few. Be a junior bird watcher. Save this page and put a check in the box when you spot one.

Robins

Adult robins have orange breasts. Babies have spotted breasts. Look for their nests in shrubs, orchards or on buildings. They like berries, worms and insects (10 in. long).

Cardinals

Cardinals often live in city yards and parks in low shrubs or branches of trees. The males are a bright red (8 in. long).

House Sparrows

House sparrows live in cities and suburbs. They are greyish tan with white cheeks and white stripes on their wings. The male has a black bib (5 in. long).

Downy Woodpeckers

Downy woodpeckers live in woodlands, orchards and gardens. They are black and white. The male has a red spot on his head. They eat insects (6 in. long).

Common Crows

Crows live in cities as well as suburbs and farms. They are black. They feed very early in the morning. They eat grubs, beetles. mice and other pests (8 in. long).

Mockingbirds

Mockingbirds copy the song of other birds. They are grey with white wing patches (9 in. long).

Mourning Doves

Mourning doves live in cities and towns. They eat seeds, berries and wild fruits (10 in. long).

Hints for Bird Watching

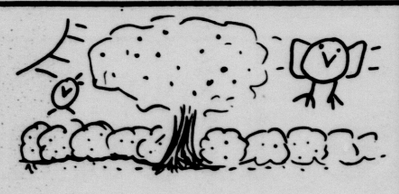

1. Get a good bird book. Bird watchers usually identify birds by size, color and diet.

Bird	where	when
Robin	by Gate	June 6

2. Keep a bird calendar. Write the name of the bird and where you saw it.

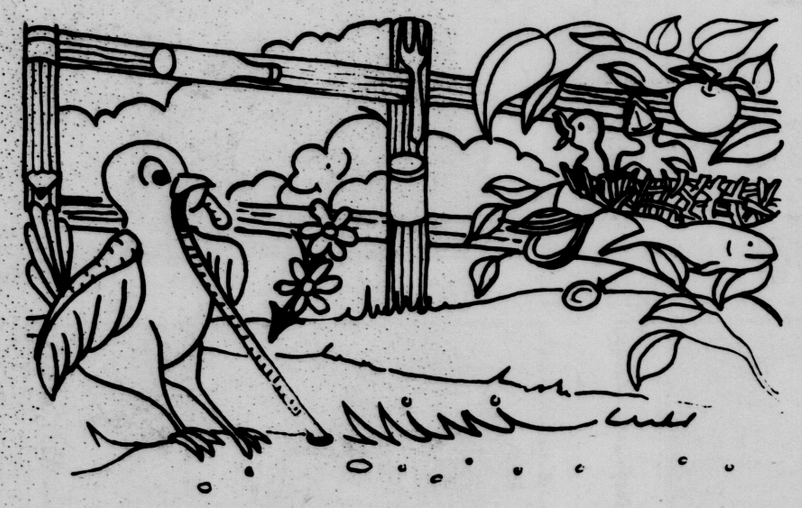

3. Put a feeder out where you can see it from your window.

4. Grow plants such as grapes, honeysuckle and dogwood trees. These have berries.

Super Sport: Don Gullett

Last season, the 25-year-old lefthander helped Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" win the world championship with super pitching.

In his past five years with the Reds, Don has won 65 games and lost only 37. He developed a forkball, which has enabled him to strike out a lot of batters.

Gullett, who lives in Lynn, Kentucky, was also a standout football player in high school. He scored 72 points in one game.

He is married and has two children.

The Problem Bird

Starlings are usually about 8½ inches in length. They have greenish-black, slightly-spotted feathers. They walk on short legs that are wide apart.

One day, 86 years ago, a man released 60 starlings in Central Park in New York City. He had imported these birds from Europe.

He did not do the country a favor.

These birds have become very big pests. They have multiplied at such a rate that they are one of the most common birds.

They are problems for several reasons.

They travel in huge flocks and swoop down and eat farmers' crops.

Their diet includes grasshoppers, caterpillars and beetles. These are foods that other birds like, too.

Starlings are not the only pests. Blackbirds and grackles are also problems. These birds, along with the starling, produce a lot of droppings that make buildings dirty and cause health problems.

Bird experts are trying to find ways to control these birds that nobody likes.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

If you found a baby bird?

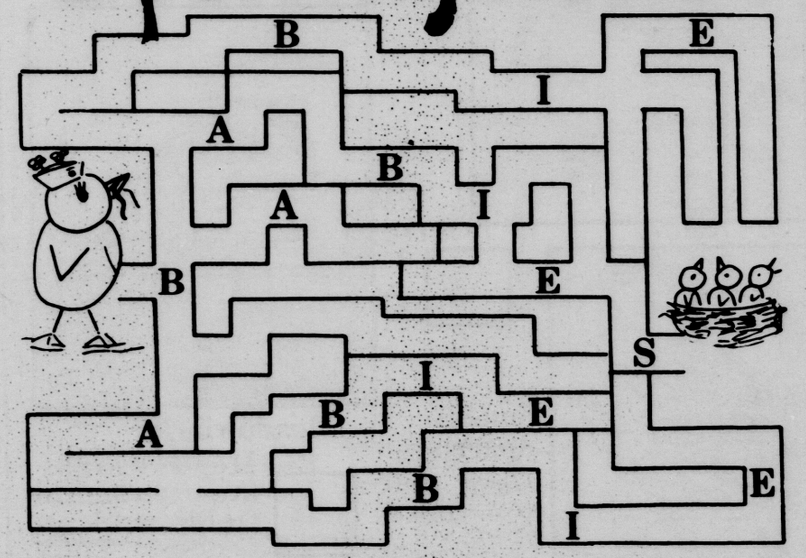

This time of year, many baby birds flutter to the ground before they are able to fly. They have feathers, but aren't able to take to the air.

1. Wait and watch. The chances are very good that it has not been deserted by its mother. Wait at least one hour. Keep cats and dogs away.

2. If the mother bird does not show up, you might try raising it, but it's hard to do. Keep it warm, by placing it near a light bulb or hot water bottle. Force feed it every half-hour with an eyedropper using cornmeal mush or tiny bits of bread soaked in milk. When it is strong enough, put it outside on a high limb.

Bridger, Sikeston Motor & Triangle win

Bridger defeated Barketts E-Z Mart 9-6, Sikeston Motor was victorious over Marks Food Mart 13-11 and Triangle beat Rotary 15-3 in the Minor Division of the Girls Softball League Thursday night.

Triangle had no trouble with Rotary as they scored four runs in each of the first two innings to put the game out of reach. Elizabeth Pobst, Eddie Simpson and Karen Crugnale collected two hits apiece for the winners. Sherry Campbell and Diane Dillon collected the only two hits for Rotary.

Bridger had to stage a last inning comeback to defeat Barketts. Bridger jumped to a 2-0 lead and led 5-1 after three and a half innings. Barkett took the lead with two runs in the fourth and three in the fifth but Bridger crossed the plate four times in the sixth inning to pull out the victory. Sharon Boyd had two hits for the winners.

Sikeston Motor and Marks had a slugfest as the winners banged out 13 hits while Marks had four.

Sikeston Motor scored three runs in the first inning and led 4-0 before Marks roared back with four to tie the game in the second inning. Sikeston Motor scored three runs to take the lead but Marks came right back to score four in the third to regain the advantage. Sikeston put the game away with six runs in the fourth.

Jodi Harris had two of Marks four hits in the game. Susan Combs had three hits to lead the winners.

Pitchers shine in Sr. Babe Ruth play

Pitchers took over the spotlight in the Sr. Babe Ruth League Thursday night. Jim Moore beat Security Bank and Trust 6-2 in a game stopped by the time limit. Then lefties Rick Taylor and Kevin Lasters hooked up in a pitcher's duel in the nightcap, Taylor winning on a six-hit shutout, 4-0. Lasters allowed just three hits and fanned 15 while dropping the decision.

Jim Moore scored in every inning after the first with the help of doubles by Broshears and Greer. McMurray had a double for Security Bank and Trust.

Don Francis got the victory with three scoreless innings in relief of starter Allen Davidson. Art Romanowski was the loser.

Wayne Barnett's long triple off jthe rightfield fence scored a run, then he crossed the plate for a pair of insurance runs to back the tough hurling of Taylor. Two errors, a walk and a passed ball had given the Elks Club an early 2-0 lead.

Marks wins again

Bob Stinnett outpitched John Chesser in The Sikeston Fast-pitch Softball League Thursday to give the league leading Marks Food Mart team a 3-2 victory over the Eagles.

Stinnett also knocked in the winning run with a single in the fifth inning after Ricky Burnett had got on safely ahead of him.

Marks started the game with safe bunts that the Eagles couldn't field cleanly and took a precarious 2-0 lead. Stinnett hasd his drops and curves and knuckle balls going until the Eagles tied the score in the third inning on basehits by Jerry Taylor, Jim Kindle and a basehit by Terry Comstock.

The second game of the night between Bank of Sikeston and Eby's was forfeited to Bank of Sikeston because Eby's had only seven players show up for the start. The league rules say that a team cannot start a game with less than eight players.

Hays emerges from coma induced by overdose

BARNESVILLE, Ohio. (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays emerged today from a coma induced by an overdose of sleeping pills, his doctor said. Hays smiled at his wife and spoke short sentences that made sense, the doctor reported.

Dr. Richard Phillips said the overdose taken by Hays, central figure in the congressional payroll-sex scandal which broke May 23, was apparently accidental and that Hays should be fully recovered within 10 days.

The 65-year-old Democratic congressman was in satisfactory condition, Phillips said, but is still technically semi-comatose despite periods when he makes rational statements.

Hays was unconscious when taken to the hospital Thursday morning. He awakened at 5:30 a.m. this morning and asked to see his wife, Pat, who kept a night-long vigil at the hospital. She returned to the room later and the congressman smiled at her, Phillips said.

"His recovery should be complete," Phillips told a midmorning press briefing. After his release from the hospital he will have to rest for a week to 10 days before returning to his congressional duties, the doctor said.

In Washington, meanwhile, House leaders said today that a proposal to force Hays to resign as chairman of the House Administration Committee will be put off until he recovers.

The proposal was scheduled for action next Wednesday at a meeting of the House Democratic Caucus, but House Speaker Carl Albert and House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill said there is no question that meeting will be postponed.

Phillips said studies of the blood are being made now at the University of Pittsburgh to determine the amount of the sleeping-pill overdose. The pills had been prescribed for Hays because he was under stress, Phillips said.

Also at the briefing was Carol Clawson, Hays's Washington press secretrary. Mrs. Clawson denied a report by columnist Jack Anderson that revelation of Hays' extramarital sex activities had alientated him from his wife of a few weeks and that she had left him Wednesday for a second time.

Mrs. Clawson also denied an Anderson report that Hays would shoot himself if he felt it would spare his wife any further pain over the congressional payroll-scandal in which Hays admitted he had a personal relationship with 33-year-old Elizabeth Ray.

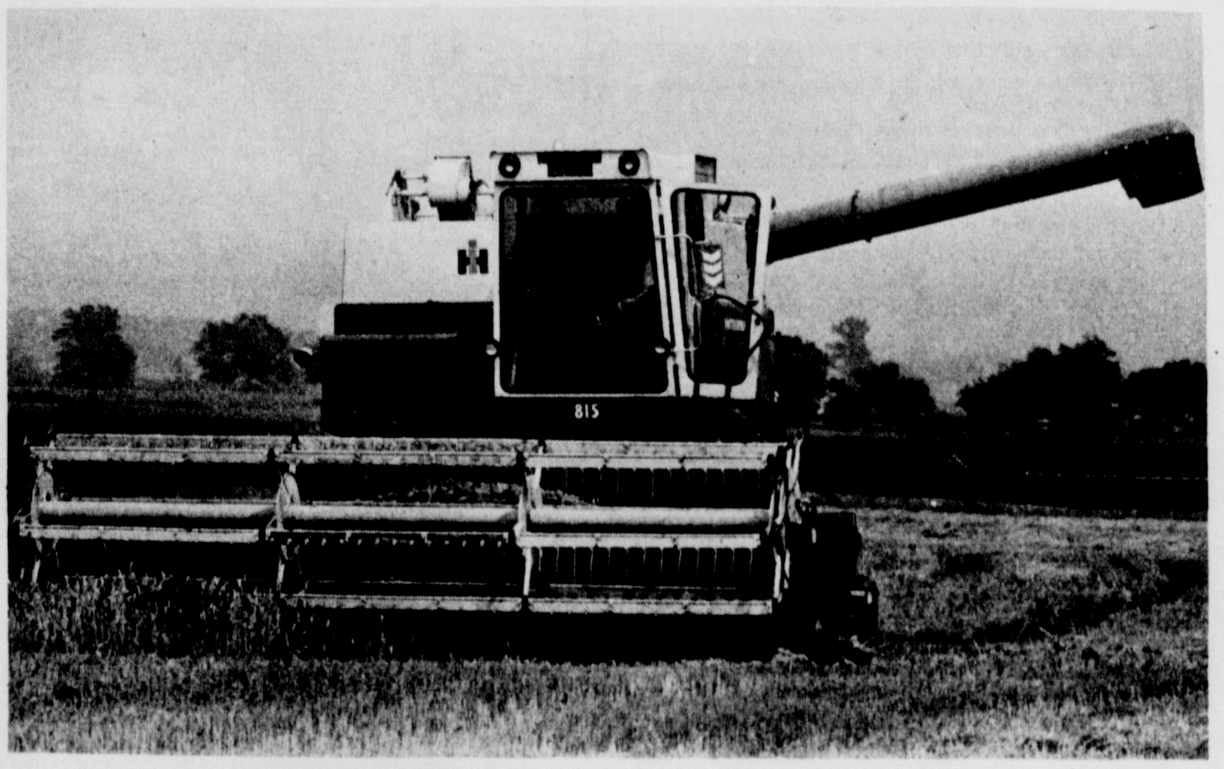

But less than a week ago, when asked by an Associated Press reporter whether he had threatened suicide, Hays had responded, "No comment."

Miss Ray, the 33-year-old blonde who accused Hays of putting her on the staff of his House Administration Committee to be his mistress, arrived at London airport today and appeared close to tears when told Hays had been hospitalized.

"It's dreadful. I'm very shocked," she said. "Before I left ... I had no idea anything like this had happened."

Miss Ray, dressed in blue jeans, blue blouse and a patterned velvet jacket, said she was in London to promote a book she has written about the sexual affairs of fictitious characters in Washington.

Phillips had said Thursday night. "Every hour his level of coma is slowly and steadily decreasing. He's going to make it."

Wheat harvest begins

Area farmers tested wheat fields this week and found them dry enough to begin harvesting their crop. Here, Roy Proctor Sr. of Benton Route One, combines wheat in his fields between Benton and Commerce. The freeze last month damaged the crop a little, according to Proctor, but he still expects a pretty good yield.

A $900,000 suit was filed by Hettie Daugherty of Oran against Sam Tanksley Trucking Co. and driver Barney Towell of Cape Girardeau.

Count one of the suit states that at 4:11 p.m. Aug. 29, 1975, Eugene Daugherty, husband of the plaintiff, was driving his auto in the southbound lane of South Kingshighway in Cape Girardeau, when Barney Towell, operating a tractor truck owned by Tanksley Trucking in the northbound lane, allegedly drove the tractor across the center line dividing the north bound and south bound traffic, causing the truck to collide with the Daugherty auto. Daugherty sustained injuries and later died.

The suit further states that Towell, allegedly negligently and carelessly failed to keep his vehicle under proper control; allegedly failed to keep a proper lookout for other traffic; allegedly failed to drive and operate his vehicle upon the right half of the roradway; allegedly he negligently and carelessly drove his vehicle at excessive rate of speed under the circumstances then existing and that he failed to stop, slow or swerve his vehicle to avoid the accident.

That as a result of the collision, and alleged carelessness and negligent omission and violation of the law by Barney Towell and agent for Sam Tanksley Trucking Inc., Eugene Daugherty was caused to sustain injuries resulting in his death.

Count one of the suit seeks $200,000 in damages from Tanksley Trucking for the death of Daugherty.

In count two, which asks $250,000 from Tanksley, the suit states Mrs. Daugherty, a passenger in the auto driven by her husband at the time of the accident, suffered damage and permanent injury and infection to her left eye, injury to her head resulting in amnesic condition, compound fractures to her arm, suffered injury to her hip, leg, ankle, bones, joints and that her muscles and membranes, were

The accident occurred at 6:10 p.m. on Highway 60 four miles west of Dexter when Fuchs parked his vehicle on the westbound shoulder, then got out and started running across the road where he was struck by the eastbound Colwell auto.

The body was taken to the Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

In a one- vehicle accident at 12:05 p.m. on a gravel township road two miles northwest of Campbell, Darrell Lee Cowell, 17, of Malden lost control of an eastbound car when it struck loose gravel and ran off the road on a curve.

Cowell and two passengers, Billie Cunningham, 15, of Bernie and Timothy Tittle, 26, of Malden, suffered serious injuries. Another passenger, Freddie Lee Smiley, 19, of Bernie, received minor injuries. All four were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff, then Cowell and Cunningham were later transferred to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

David D. Caldwell, 24 of Arbyrd Route One received minor injuries at 2 p.m. when his northbound tractor trailer truck struck the engine of a Cotton Belt train operated by Fred H. Bridger, 49, of Jonesboro, Ark., Route Five.

The patrol reported the accident occurred in Arbyrd when Caldwell failed to see the train and struck the side of the engine as it crossed the highway.

Calswell was taken to Palenske Clinic in Hornersville.

Knife blade thrown into motorist's head

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — A knife thrower buried a blade in the head of a southeast Missouri man Thursday, Poplar Bluff police said Friday.

James H. Wallace of Broseley told police he was riding in a automobile with the window rolled down, when a knife was thrown at him.

Capt. Jerry Webb said a blade with a five-inch handle was buried to the hilt in the right side of Wallace's head near the temple.

Wallace was transferred from Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff to a Memphis hospital. Police say he never lost consciousness.

Police had a woman in custody.

'Birthday in Park' set

The Sikeston Bicentennial Commission Thursday announced a list of activities that will highlight the "Old-Fashioned Birthday in the Park" July 3 in Malone Park.

The activities begin at 1 p.m. with a talent show featuring performers from all over Southeast Missouri. Performances will continue all afternoon.

Other events will include a bubble gum blowing contest, three-legged race, peanut push, watermelon eating contest, celebrity dunking barrell, hog calling contest, arts and crafts exhibits, Bicentennial costume contest, Bicentennial princess beauty pageant and a street dance featuring the "Violent Hash."

The commission says it is suggesting that the public bring a blanket and a picnic lunch and enjoy "good wholesome family entertainment in celebration of our nation's 200th birthday."

Musical performers or groups interested in performing should contact Ben Jordan at 471-9029 or 472-0795 or the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce office, 471-2498.

Sikeston to salute America

The 21-day period from Flag Day, June 14, to July 4, has been designated Honor America Days by a proclamation signed by Mayor Don Fulton.

The designation says in part that Sikeston is taking this opportunity to salute the founding fathers and other major figures whose character, wisdom and physical exertions contributed toward establishing the viability of the republic.

"We desire to not only acclaim these forebearers, but to also analyze and assess their concepts and methods and to consider adapting them to our contemporary problems," the proclamation reads.

"We must realize that although the United States can enjoy feelings of justifiable pride as we view in retrospect we must also unite and conquer the new perplexities which the United States will face as we enter the threshold of our third century...

"We desire the uniting of all people for a truly representative Bicentennial celebration in order to deepen the understanding of each other's problems."

Purse stolen from car

Jane Ann Felker, 708 Taylor St., told police her purse was taken from the front seat of her car between 3:15 and 3:40 p.m. Wednesday.

The theft occurred while the car was parked at Marks Food Mart, 700 N. Main St., or the Jaycee Swimming Pool on Taylor Street. The purse contained about $10.

The purse was found and returned later, but the money was gone.

Call special election

East Prairie to realign wards

EAST PRAIRIE— The date for a special election to elect a mayor and alderman cannot be set until wards in the city are realigned. However, the City Council Thursday night indicated all efforts would be made to hold the election Aug. 3 in conjunction with the regular primary election.

The special election is necessary, since city residents voted June 1 to abolish city manager-council form of city government.

The alighments of the two wards will be handled by the county clerk's office, and according to City Manager Frank Carter, County Clerk Arthur Lee Goodman said his office would begin work on the matter immediately.

City Attorney Fielding Potashnick informed the council that ordinances of the city will have to be revised, since the city has reverted back from third class to fourth class. He indicated the cost for revision would be approximately $3,000.

Potashnick also said he was seeking a ruling from the attorney general's office on the length of the term of those elected at the special election.

He is unsure if the elected officials will be in office just until April of 1977, the regular city

Clean-up week scheduled

NEW MADRID — A citywide clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign will begin Monday, spearheaded by the Community Betterment Committee in cooperation with the city council.

The committee and city officials are asking all citizens to join forces during the week-long effort to clean up the town and to make it brighter, healthier and safer.

City- operated trucks will pick up trash all week. Citizens are urged to clean out attics and reduce fire hazards and to clear yards of debris and trash.

Trash and debris should be placed in trash cans, plastic bags or boxes and set near the street or curb for easy access for the pickup trucks.

The committee is asking for volunteers to bring brooms, rakes and hoes and meet at the museum at 10 a.m. June 19 to help clean up the downtown area.

As an added incentive for young people to help clean up the town, the Chamber of Commerce and Bank of New Madrid have announced that one penny will be paid for every can or bottle picked upoff the streets and brought to the Chamber office.

Carter expected to win Missouri's uncommitted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Although more than a third of the Missouri Democrats attending the state convention here Saturday will be officially uncommitted to any candidate, most believe front-running presidential candidate Jimmy Carter will gain their support by day's end.

"As a practical matter, I think Carter has it (the nomination), but I was elected as an uncommitted and I want to talk to my people first before I make any formal changes," said one in a telephone interview.

The 839 state party members chosen more than a month ago at local party caucuses will meet here to complete the selection of the state's 71-member delegation to the Democratic National Convention next month in New York. Having already chosen 54 national convention delegates at mass meetings in each of the 10 congressional districts three weeks ago, they will fill out the delegation by picking 17 more at-large delegates Saturday.

Of the 54 delegates selected so far, several have already switched from their origianl uncommitted stand—two going to Carter and two others going to anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack. The totals based on an Associated Press Survey now stand at 29 for Carter, three each for Mrs. McCormack and Arizona Congressman Morris Udall and one for Washington Sen. Henry Jackson.

The remaining 18 are uncommitted although five of them along with one Udall delegate and the Jackson backer have said in interviews that they are now leaning heavily toward Carter.

By being uncommitted, I've never been anti-Carter," one of those five said. "I felt this election was too important to be in a hurry to get behind any one candidate. But we have to deal with reality and the reality is that Carter is probably going to be the nominee."

State Treasurer James Spainhower, who began backing Carter last month, has predicted the former Georgia governor will get 13 of the 17 delegates to be chosen Saturday.

"I don't think there's any stopping him now and that will be reflected in our (state) convention," Spainhower said.

Endorsements of his candidacy by most of his national political rivals earlier this week have catapulted Carter to all but an assured first-ballot nomination. But many Missouri Democrats are still clutching to their official uncommitted status, apparently still miffed by the way state party leaders handled a controversial switch in mid-May from endorsing uncommitted delegates to endorsing Carter.

"It's a matter of principle," one nominally uncommitted delegate said. "They told us one day to be uncommitted and then the next to go for Carter. I think that's the viewpoint of most rank and file Democrats."

Hoping to take advantage of that situation is California Gov. Edmund Brown, the only Carter rival to claim the nomination is not locked up. Brown has scheduled a meeting with uncommitted delegates in hopes of wooing enough of them into his group to make it eligible to select a national convention delegates Saturday at the state convention.

He is expected to find at least some support among the uncommitteds as several indicated strong opposition to Carter.

"The people who selected me don't like Carter," one said while another added that Brown "is going to be working for us."

After the initial round in the delegate selection process in Missouri in April and early May, the uncommitted slate controlled 66 per cent of those chosen. But two days after that process was completed, 34 state party leaders headed by U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton changed their strategy from backing uncommitted delegates to backing Carter.

That switch had its effect, though not as great as the party leaders had hoped, as the uncommitted ranks fell to only 39 per cent when the 54 national convention delegates were chosen last month. Since then their strength has been slowly sapped as the Carter steamroller picked up speed.

Despite the official split of the Missouri delegation following Saturday's session, however, many officials believe the first national convention ballot will see Missouri cast at least 64 votes for Carter.

"Let's face it," one delegate said. "Jimmy Carter has it and we all have to get on the bandwagon sometime. It's just a question of when."

Ford, Reagan seek 19 Missouri delegates

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and challenger Ronald Reagan, battling for every available delegate in their closely matched race for the Republican presidential nomination, today sought Missouri's remaining 19 delegates.

The 19 at-large delegates to be selected at Missouri's GOP convention Saturday afternoon are among the more than 400 uncommitted and yet-to-be-chosen delegates to the Republican national convention in Kansas City on Aug. 16.

Missouri will send a total of 49 delegates to the convention. Of the other 30 chosen at congressional district conventions in May, 15 support Ford, 12 are for the former California governor and three are uncommitted.

"It appears to be very close," state GOP Committee Chairman Lowell McCuskey said when asked to forecast the way in which the 19 votes will be split.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, a Ford supporter, would not make a prediction.

An Associated Press survey on Thursday showed Ford with 965 of the 1,130 delegates needed for nomination and Reagan with 862.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, holding a commanding lead in the Democratic delegate race, relaxed at home today. The former Georgia governor had 1,212 publicly committed delegates as of Thursday, The AP survey showed. The Democratic National Committee's scoreboard showed him with 1,514 delegates, nine more than needed for the nomination.

The two GOP contenders scheduled receptions tonight at neighboring motels in this southwestern Missouri city. Although they will be crossing paths several times after their arrivals in late afternoon, Bond said the chances are "absolutely zero" that they would meet.

Ford's scheduled stay was limited to about four hours, while Reagan planned to address the 1,439-member state convention Saturday morning.

Illinois Republicans also will hold a state convention Saturday to choose five at-large delegates. As a result of his victory in the March 16 primary, Ford has 72 committed delegates from Illinois to 11 for Reagan and 13 uncommitted.

Carter picked up more delegates Thursday as Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania and Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia became the latest one-time candidates to endorse Carter.

Two other Democratic hopefuls — Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona — acknowledged that the race was all but over, as did Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who had said he was available for the nomination but would not actively campaign.

Carter's chief remaining rival, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., insisted Thursday that he would continue his campaign in spite of Carter's growing strength.

"I direct my campaign and I think to press forward makes a lot of sense," Brown told reporters. "I don't think it would be right to yield at this point."

Brown returned home Thursday from campaigning in Louisiana, where Gov. Edwin Edwards said 17 of the state's 19 uncommitted delegates had unanimously decided "not to jump on the Carter bandwagon."

PANAMA IN PERSPECTIVE

By Howard Flieger

It is disconcering — and disappointing in a way — that the future of the Panama Canal has become the hottest subject in the Republican presidential campaign.

This is not to say that the Canal is not important. Of course it is.

But is it of a magnitude to justify all the excitement that has been aroussed by Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford? is it worth dividing the party to the point where such conservative champions as Governor Reagan and Senator Barry Goldwater are at odds?

Viewed in the whole panorama of national politics, the Canal is a peripheral matter. And the disturbing thing is that the strident debate over its future — obviously a sensitive point with many voters — has tended to obscure other fundamental issues.

This year's campaign is an important one. The voters are entitled to hear a thoughtful discussion among those who would be President about how each would cope with the problems that beset the country.

What are the real issues?

Inflation is one. Everybody would welcome a clear presentation of blueprints for bringing it firmly under control and keeping it there. Campaign oratory on the subject to date has been superficial.

Unemployment is another.

The energy crisis is crucial, though all but ignored by the campaigners.

Welfare ranks high on the list. The public has made it clear by every means it can that it wants a solution to the waste and mismanagement at all levels.

Crime is a major issue. So is the economy. So is the Middle East. So is the future of relations with the Soviet Union. So are defense and disarmament.

And, in this context, so is the Panama Canal. But it should be kept in context. It is a bit risky to blow it up out of proportion and threaten to fight for U.S. "sovereignty."

Does anybody really believe that the American people, still bruised by their experience in Vietnam, are ready to go to war with their Latin American neighbors over the Panama Canal, or that Pamama is about to throw the United States out of the Canal Zone and take over the whole works?

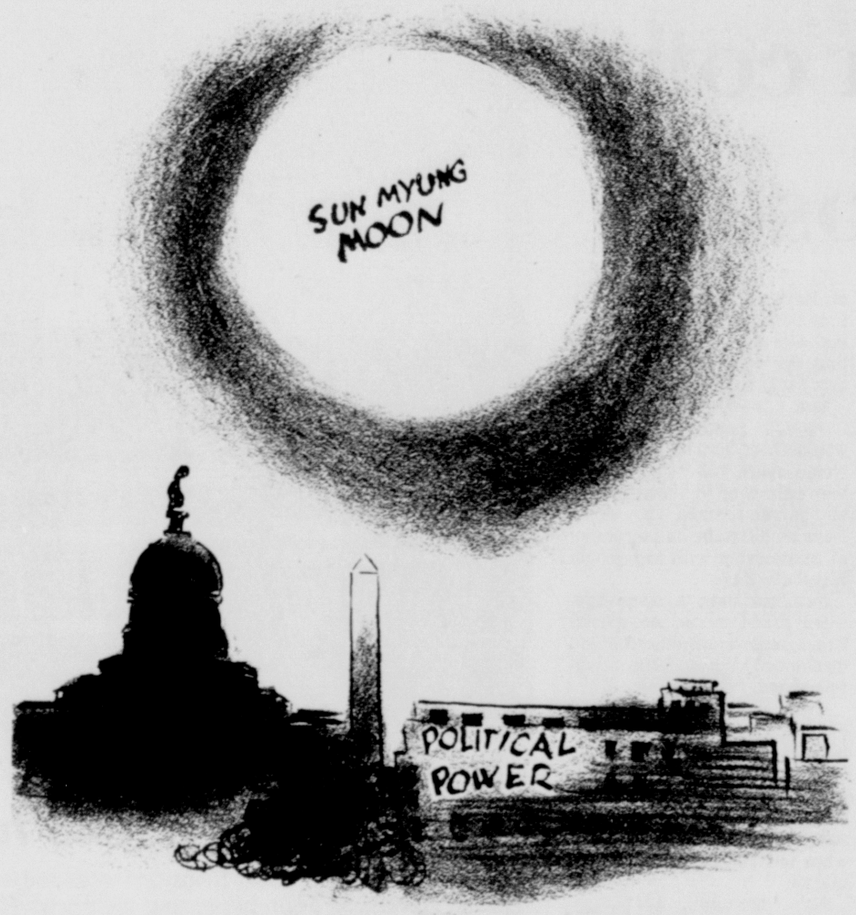

Negotiations for a new Canal treaty began long before Mr. Ford took office. The points at issue are not simple.

The Panamanians want to end U.S. rights that have been held "in perpetuity" since 1903. The United States wants control of the Canal Zone through the rest of this century, and a role in its defense thereafter. Panama wants the U.S. out by the year 2000.

It is interesting to recall the campaign of 1960 and the TV debates between Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy. There were big issues then, too, but the debates centered on two Nationalist Chinese islands — Quemoy and Matsu — and whether the U.S. would defend them if the Chinese Communists tried to capture them.

The pertinent point now is that the Chinese islands almost ran awaywith the 1960 campaign, leaving behind more important and urgent national concerns. It will be too bad if the same thing happens in the 1976 campaign over the future of the Panama Canal.

NEW JUSTICE FOR OLDEST SETTLERS?

When the Indian signed treaties in the 19th century that were to last "as long as the grass grows and the rivers run," he didn't foresee the white man's 20th-century technology, which can change the rivers in their courses or slow them to a trickle.

An area of central Arizona, which has been irrigated and farmed by American Indians for 2,000 years, according to archeological estimates, is gradually reverting to arid desert. For 30,000 Pima, Papago and Mohave-Apache Indians, organized into five tribal communities, it has become a question of how much longer they will be able to grow grass or any other crop with the water they have left.

This tragedy, which has changed once-prosperous, self-sufficient Indian farmers into destitute, welfare-dependent people, was brought about by the theft of their water in violation of rights supposedly guaranteed them by the U.S. government, charges the Association on American Indian Affairs.

For the past 100 years, says the association, the Department of the Interior has repeatedly subverted treaties, statutes, executive orders and federal court decisions to the benefit of commercial and industrial interests and non-Indian farmers.

Now at last, following lengthy hearings last October by the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, a bill has been introduced in the Senate to settle once and for all the complex question of the water rights of the five tribes "and to promote their economic self-sufficiency through farming and irrigated agriculture." This is S.3298, introduced by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Essentially, the bill would authorize and direct the Secretary of the Interior to acquire, at fair market value, about 170,000 acres of lands in central Arizona with surface water rights and transfer these rights to the tribes in satisfaction of their present and future right to the use of water for farming purposes.

The acquisition would take place over a number of years, allowing ample time for the amortization of investments and orderly decisions on the part of non-Indian water users.

The alternative is protracted litigation in the courts, which would also take many years, Kennedy points out, with resultant hardship and uncertainty for both non-Indian and Indian water users.

The plight of 30,000 Indians may be of little moment to 210 million other Americans, but the fact is that taxpayers are now spending $60 million a year to keep these still proud people on welfare they do not want.

At the same time, the government proposes to spend $1 billion to rescue no more than 151 white-owned farms, whose run-off has been contributing to the pollution of the lower Colorado. This is the estimated construction and operating cost of the Wellton-Mowhawk desalinization plant designed to fulfill treaty obligations with Mexico regarding Colorado River quality.

Under S.3298, the Secretary of the Interior would also be authorized to retire these farms, paying just compensation to their owners, and the expensive desalinization plant would not be necessary.

S.3298 "could well be the most important piece of American Indian natural resource legislation ever passed," says the Association on American Indian Affairs, "and celebrate this Bicentennial year with the start of a new era of justice for our first Americans."

HOW MANY WILL HEALTH CARE BENEFIT?

Some form of national health insurance is probably still several years away, but a number of people are already wondering about the possible consequences of a program designed to deliver the greatest amount of health care to the greatest number.

As one of them expresses it, "If you take health care in the strong sense, there is always going to be greater demand than supply...How in the world can you give everybody access to expensive, exotic treatments?"

The questioner is Daniel Callahan, founder of the Institute of Society, Ethics and Life Sciences at Hastings-on-the Hudson, New York. Congress, he notes in an interview in U.S. Catholic magazine, has already passed a bill underwriting hemodialysis (kidney machine treatment) for everyone, "no matter what the costs."

But there are a lot of other similarly "catastrophic" illnesses, and as medical science advances, there are going to be more and more cures or treatments which inevitably will entail very large expenditures.

The prospect of an artificial heart, which is probably going to be developed in the next few years, will pose great problems, says Callahan. He estimates that 500,000 people right now could use an artificial heart, and that each heart would cost about $20,000 initially, with an annual maintenance expense of $5,000 to $10,000. "The figures become astronomical."

Mental health, which "includes people vaguely unhappy, neurotic and dissatisfied with life," is a "bottomless pit," he says. The wealthy pay psychologists $50 an hour to help them cope with that sort of thing. But if the wealthy can afford it, should everybody have the right?

Callahan is not the first to have raised such questions. John Lach, professor of philosophy at Vanderbilt University, recently warned that "It will not be long before we shall have to make some rational decisions about how much of our social wealth is to be spent on extraordinary measures to keep the older members of our population alive...

"We may well find that the amount of money we can plow into making advanced medical technology available for all is more limited than even the most pessimistic among us fear."

To many people, however, all this may seem like borrowing problems that may or may not materialize and which in any case cannot be solved until we actually encounter them. The primary purpose of national health insurance, after all, is not to give everyone who needs one an artificial heart or a kidney machine or some other exotic treatment, but to extend the routine, ordinary health care that now exists to those who, for financial or other reasons, do not or cannot avail themselves of it.

In this respect, the experiences of other countries should be instructive. Britain, for example, has had comprehensive cradle-to-grave health insurance since after World War II. We have heard no reports about agonizing choices having to be made between treating the aged or the hopelessly ill as opposed to the young or less acutely ill.

Rather, what has ballooned the proportions and costs of Britain's system and, according to some charges, actually brought about a deterioration of the general level of health care, has not been the problem of catastrophic illnesses but the sheer cumulative effect of millions of daily, routine medical visits and treatments.

There is really only one thing we can be sure of: Whatever kind of national health insurance program, if any, the United States adopts, it is going to cost money.

THE GREATEST SERVICE

Controlling inflation requires the curbing of government deficit spending and the adoption of measures to stimulate the initiative and productivity of private enterprise. In spite of these warnings, the bureaucracy of big government rolls on, constantly threatening to crush the sources of its own sustenance and the liberties of U.S. citizens. Now a measure is proposed to put the government into the electric power transmission business.

Commenting on this, the president of a taxpaying, investor-owned power company asserts, "The creation of a federally-owned national electrical transmission system would be an unwarranted expenditure of the taxpayer's money. The United States is presently supplied with electric power over extensive transmission networks more highly interconnected than any other such network elsewhere in the world....In the fourth quarter of 1973, only seven interruptions of bulk power supply were reported to the Federal Power Commission....All of them were confined to the service area of single systems–the longest was for three hours. Ice and windstorms were the cause of four of these outages....Any ownership restructuring of the electric power industry cannot be justified on the basis of need...."

Such a move by the federal government would also further undermine confidence of investors in the future of the American business system upon which the well-being and livelihood of everyone depends. The greatest service to the country which Congress can now perform would be to put the house of government in order and get off the backs of private citizens who must somehow keep the wheels of production and distribution turning.

COMPANY PAYS A HIGH PRICE

Companies conducting surveys of regulatory impact are uncovering "provocative facts," Armco Steel Corp. revealed in its 1975 annual report. Armco noted "we must obtain licenses or permits from at least 379 different agencies—federal, state and local. We must submit reports to 1,245 more. Still another 1,026 agencies require regular correspondence from us."

The agencies won't compromise for common sense solutions as this Armço experience proves: "One of our plants pays a special tax of less than $10 a year on its heavy trucks. Making the reports to pay this $10 tax cost us $1,240 in 1975. We tried to simplify things by offering to pay a flat $25 fee instead of $10—and skip the report. Our offer was refused. So the cost of $1,240 for a tax of less than $10 continues."

MOVIE VIOLENCE

A real leader is a person who recognizes a problem, diagnoses the situation and takes affirmative action to remedy it, even when it may be unprecedented or unpopular. Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley has given us a good demonstration of leadership by trying to do something about a major cause of the tremendous recent increase in teen-age crime.

His remedy comes to grips with the fact that violence in the movies is to the urban concentration of teen-agers, minorities and unemployed what a lighted cigarette is to a parched forest.

Just as the safety of the people allows us to prohibit a smoker from tossing his lighted cigarette butt out the car window, the safety of city dwellers requires that we stop the movie violence which panders to impressionable teen-agers with sadism, senseless brutality and unconscionable cruelty.

What Mayor Daley did was to persuade the Chicago City Council to pass an ordinance by a vote of 45 to 2 prohibiting the admission of anyone under 18 to movies which are obscene or extremely violent, including such acts as "cuttings, stabbings, floggings, eye gouging, brutal kicking and dismemberment."

The City Council heard evidence that the average teenager in Chicago sees 11,000 murders on television before he is 18.

This conditioning to brutality is then inflamed by gory violence in the movies, with blood oozing in living color.

Alderman Adeline P. Keane pinpointed the issue clearly when, in urging passage of the ordinance, she said: "Kids are mimics, and they mimic whatever they see ... when they see this violence, they are liable to act it out."

Particularly offensive are the movies of excessive violence which cater especially to the blacks and are called "black exploitation" films. A sixth-grade teacher who testified before the City Council called them "blazploitation" films because they glorify criminals, "pimps, hustlers and non-workers," thereby giving wrong role-models to young blacks.

It is to be expected that Mayor Daley and the City Council will be condemned by the pornography profiteers who want a broad interpretation of the 1st Amendment to override every other moral and constitutional value. The 1st Amendment, however,does not and should not include the right to obscenity, blasphemy, disturbing the peace or incitement to crime -- and that is exactly what these films do.

One of the specious arguments made against the new Chicago ordinance is that we should leave it to the movie industry to police itself. At the annual film festival in Cannes, France, during the last week of May, films of violence received all the prizes, despite a strong condemnation form American playwright Tennessee Williams, who was president of the jury.

Williams condemned films which "take a voluptuous pleasure in spilling blood and in lingering on terrible cruelties as though one were at a Roman circus." He said that "watching violence on the screen is a brutalizing experience for the spectator."

The film selected for the top trophy at the Cannes Film Festival was "Taxi Driver." Last month a Chicago youth saw this very movie, and then went out and shot up a Northwet Side convent.

The same rights that permit us to restrict teen-age drinking, drug use, driving and marriage permit us to prohibit movies which incite teen-agers to criminal violence. Mayor Daley's courageous action should be initiated in other big cities with the problem of escalating teen-age crime.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON -- Uncle Sam has paid out millions in educational benefits to Vietnam War veterans who pocketed most of the money and then played hookey.

Legitimate students have collected millions more in overpayments, which were mistakenly disbursed because of sloppy bookeeping. So far, the government has recovered only about 80 per cent.

The figures are staggering. The overpayments amount to more than $1.4 billion. By the end of June, it is estimated the Treasury will still be short $376 million which it has been unable to recover.

No one really knowns, on the other hnad, how many veterans have been collecting educational benefits without bothering to go to school. But at one community college alone, investigators found that the taxpayers had spent over $3.7 million for the education of verterans who didn't attend classes.

A year ago, we reported that students were collecting overpayments and bogus benefits underr the GI bill. The House Veterans Committee, meanwhile, ordered the General Accounting Office to investigate. Here are the findings of the GAO and the committee staff:

Nine years ago, the Veterans Administration overpaid educational benefits by a trifling seven-tenths of one per cent. The rate now has reached an alarming 15.6 per cent. At the end of 1975, the overpayments totaled $1.4 billion.

The GAO study found that too much money had been paid to veterans under the GI bill because the schools were slow in reporting dropouts and because the Veterans Administration's "processing practices" were "poor."

As we reported last year, many veterans have taken advantage of a lax law, which was intended to permit veterans to begin their education without waiting around for the wherewithal. Under the law, the government benefit checks must be sent out before the veterans start their classes.

Some veterans have stayed home from school and have used the benefits to line their pockets at the taxpayers' expense. Many colleges, particularly community colleges, are willing to keep the absent veterans on their rolls, because the bigger the enrollment, the more state support they can claim.

At the Florida Junior College in Jacksonville, for example, House investigators found a startling number of Vietnam veterans on the rolls whose transcripts showed they hadn't been studying.

One had been carried as a student since 1969. He had enrolled in 32 courses without earning a single credit. Yet the school permitted him to remain enrolled, and he drew a minimum of $270 a month from the taxpayers the whole time.

After the visit from the House investigators, the school hastily reviewed its records and dropped 25 per cent of the veterans from its student body. This should save the taxpayers at least $3.75 million.

The same story has been repeated around the country. A VA audit team at Northern Virginia Community College, for example, turned up "discrepancies" in literally thousands of cases. The "potential liability" in 831 of the cases was estimated at $768,920,09.

Footnote: The VA is trying to tighten its procedures to avoid the overpayments and to increase its collections.

HORSE ABUSE: The world's most famous horses, the Lipizzan Stallions, have been cruelly abused on their current U.S. tour.

Sworn affidavits and taped statements, documenting the brutality, have been turned over to Us. Employes who have worked with the horses have also told us stories of repeated negligence and mistreatment.

The Lipizzan Stallions, whose ancestors were carefully bred by royal families of the 17th century, have appeared in several movies. Their dramatic rescue from Austria during World War II was featured in a Walt Disney movie, "Miracle of the White Stallions."

Here are a few typical allegations about how the beautiful animals are now treated in the "Wonderful World of Horses" show --- allegations which the management denies as "absolutely false."

-- When a trailer wheel broke last month, the panicky stallions kicked and bit each other severely. The horses that could still perform had white shoe polish spread over their open wounds, according to witnesses, so the spectators wouldn't see the injuries. The show's director, John Finley, insisted that only baby powder and zinc ointment had been applied.

-- Former employes told of one horse being spurred until it bled profusely, another horse being whipped to the ground, still other horses being beaten with heavy chains and rubber hoses. "Not true," said the director.

-- The vans which haul the horses from city to city are in such miserable condition, it is also alleged, that they cause injury to the horses. Finley acknowledged that repairs have had to be made but denied that the equipment has injured any horses.

-- Former employes also complained that the horses were kept in trucks up to three days without exercise. "A total lie," responded Finley.

-- A year ago, a company truck turned over, burst into flames and burned alive the driver and four horses. Former employes swear the director had been warned repeatedly that the fuel hose was leaking. Finley said that he had never received any such warning and that investigators were unable to determine the cause of the accident.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Big Apple on Spit:
Average city employe costs cashless New York almost $30,000 a year

NEW YORK— So you can understand why the Big Apple is being roasted, I report that top U.S. Treasury officials, who now control the financial lifeline of this almost bankrupt Babylon, estimate it costs New York City an average of some $30,000 a year to pay and "to fringe" each municipal employe.

This compares with an average of $13,000 to $14,000 annual maintenance of each federal civil servant.

The startling New York City employe average labor cost comes from Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and his Deputy Assistant Secretary Robert Gerard, in the Office of Undersecretary for Monetary Affairs. In effect, Gerard is account executive in charge of monitoring New York City's ability to repay the $2.3 billion which the federal government is lending the big town so it can avert default.

In all, New York City's annual payroll tops $7 billion. Of this at least $2 billion is paid into the gargantuan civil service pension systems each year. Payouts of $12,000 to $30,000 in annual pensions are as ordinary as uncollected garbage.

A special temporary commission on city finances, appointed by the besieged Mayor Abe Beame, comes in with a figure slightly lower than the federal government's. But its estimate of $26,700 a year as average gross outlay for a city employe is based on two-month-old figures. Since then there have been routine pay and fringe increases despite the city's churchmouse coffers.

Few are aware that this city, on which so much of the national economy depends, not to mention the liquidity of several score banks, puts out $35,288 a year for the average firefighter. This is more than twice the firemen's base pay. As for senior clerks, they cost the $12.5 billion annual budget $18,952 a year. This is 170 per cent of their base pay. One tiny item: hundreds of city workers receive allowances for uniforms though they're not required to wear them.

Few realize the city has been running one of the world's biggest universitites. Tuition for its 270,000 students has been free.

And few dare challenge the open enrollment policy which has brought idling and marauding youth bands, dope-peddling teenagers and just garden variety loafers who terrorize their instructors and staffs, into the weird City University of New York (CUNY). Certainly there are fine students in the 20-college CUNY. But in the words of an authority in the chancellery, "There are thousands of bums in our so-called classes and corridors whom no one dares fail nor ask to quit or move on."

Some of this was discussed by President Ford with his economic advisers in the White House cabinet room Thursday morning, June 3. Secretary Simon answered his queries. Then the Treasury chief briefed the chief executive, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, et al., on the reasons he (Simon) is considering refusing to lend New York City $1.1 billion which Mayor Beame expects beginning July 1.

That's a few days before municipal labor chiefs, in and out of the uniformed services, are threatenting to strike a Democratic convention-laden city.

Simon later told a caller that he was "shocked" by the on-air profanity hurled at him by Victor Gotbaum, executive director of the big (108,000 member) District Council 37, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. This was a reference to a scatalogical suggestion to Simon by Gotbaum.

The Secretary of the Treasury says that he (Simon) is determined to cut off the $1.1 billion this July "with all that this implies" if Gotbaum's organization or any other union increases the cost of New York City government by raising the wage-fringe bill in any fashion.

On Thursday, the Secretary, after having briefed President Ford on the possibility of throwing the city into bankruptcy, began writing his retort to Gotbaum. The "bottom line," Simon told me, would be simple: if the city's wage bill goes up, New York won't get a billion federal dollars in July -- or later.

Gotbaum and his associate director Lillian Roberts, one of the most articulate and militant blacks inside labor, have been in a red-hot verbal war with the city authorities. Gotbaum has said there will be wage increases in some fashion. Maybe a cost of living. But certainly more money. And the deadline appears to be July 1 when the heavy contracts expire for most of the 235,000 municipal employes.

"I'll break the law – make no bones about it," Gotbaum has warned. Also he said he wouldn't respect a court injunction. And he has charged one of his official critics with being "an inveterate liar." He hit another city official as "stupid ... incompetent... and dishonest." Roberts has called the city Health and Hospital Corporation president "the enemy."

Simon says his own move isn't political. It's the law. An examination of the "Credit Agreement by and among the U.S.A. and State of N.Y. and City of N.Y. and N.Y.S. Emergency Financial Control Board" shows that Simon has the unilateral power to cut the city off from federal funds.

Thus the state, the city, the White House, the Treasury and an extraordinarily pungent and powerful labor leader face each other with July 1 as the red line–crisscrossing one of the most dramatic political moments in decades, the Democratic national convention.

WHEN WAXING ENERGY WANES

Tempted by the wax-in-the-time-it-takes-to-dust aerosols? Well here's some good news and some bad news. The bad news is this: using spray waxes, although swift and speedy, can damage the finish on your furniture and make refinishing enormously difficult. The culprit is silicones, whether the label says so or not.

The good news: a paste-wax job, although it requires more time and energy to do it, not only looks better but also lasts longer. Best news of all: with paste, you need only wax genuine hardwood furniture twice a year. Genuine hardwood is much less fragile than many people think.

In the "look better" department, just compare a paste-waxed piece of furniture with one that has been given aerosol treatments over any period of time. The sprayed piece will have a glossy sheen that hides the beauty of the wood itself. No longer will you be able to see (or feel) the warmth of the living tree; the soft, beautiful designing done by Mother Nature herself. On the other hand, furniture lovingly treated to paste-waxing will have retained the beauty for which you originally chose furniture of genuine hardwood. The open grain pattern of handsome hardwoods like oak and pecan will still be visible; you'll still be able to enjoy the more subtle nuances of grain- and color-patterns in cherry, maple and others.

To get longer-lasting waxings, follow these simple steps:

1. Be sure the piece is thoroughly clean to start with. One of the beauties of genuine hardwood is that it can be washed with soap and water, using a dampened (not soaked) cloth or sponge. After rinsing away all traces of soap, let the piece dry for at least a half hour, after towelling.

2. To make application easier and smoother, use a slightly dampened cloth, and only a small amount of paste-wax—just enough to leave a thin film of wax on the cloth. Apply the wax to the furniture in the same direction as the grain of the wood, covering an area up to two feet at a time.

3. Let the wax set for a few minutes, but only a few, so it doesn't get a chance to cake. Then buff it with a clean, dry cloth.

4. Move on to the next two-feet-square section and repeat the process.

Between semi-annual waxings, you should dust frequently and if necessary clean your furniture with a non-oily cleaning polish or soap-and-water sponge bath. If cleaning is required more than four or five times between waxings, you may decide to wax more often—but under normal conditions, this ought not to be necessary.

The whole process is simply a matter of substituting frequency time for per-job time. And the bonus is keeping your beautiful hardwood furniture looking its best.

Miss Pickford still America's sweetheart

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Pickford's apperance on the Academy Awards telecast March 29 has brought an outpouring of mail — and thanks from the famed star.

The staff at Pickfair, Miss Pickford's hilltop mansion, reports that as many as 250 letters have arrived in a single day. The messages have come from all over the world, including one from Siberia.

"I am absolutely thrilled," said the actress who was "America's Sweetheart" during her 23-year career. "I never expected to be loved and remembered as I am today. My heart sings with joy that I'm fondly remembered by not only my generation, but by young people today.

"My romance with the world, it seems, is like your first love affair. You never forget."

Miss Pickford, 83, was honored by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, of which she was a founder, for her contributions to the film art.

Cover charge is a party no-no

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My sister-in-law and I are planning a 30th wedding anniversary party for our parents. The problem is we want to send them to Hawaii and that is so expensive. We are wondering if it would be socially acceptable to have a dinner dance and charge twenty dollars a couple. If not what would be the solution. We are stumped. —L.G.M.

DEAR L.G.M. — I am no Emily Post nor Amy Vanderbilt but I do know you should not proceed with plans for a dinner dance that would cost the guests to come. A cover charge might keep away many who would really want to come that your parents would like to see. I well understand your thoughtfulness in wanting your parents to have that great trip, but stick to a party and gift that you can afford. It is the getting together with relatives and old friends, in a festive atmosphere, that really counts. I am sure they would be thrilled if you could have some of the guests who were at their wedding or even some of the wedding party. —POLLY.

Child photographer says games win smiles

• NEW YORK (AP) — Two pennies can make all the difference between a good photograph of your child — and a great one, says Dino Semprini, the owner of a portrait studio here and a noted photographer of children.

According to him, the pose conveys the feeling you want to impart in your photograph. Since the difficulty lies in coaxing an active youngster to maintain one position the few seconds needed for the photograph, Semprini plays games.

"I place two bright, shiny pennies on the floor," he says, "and I challenge the child to keep each covered with a foot. It works every time."

He has other methods for achieving good results. Since "involved" children are more photogenic, he has toys and games on hand to help strike lively, responsive moods. He also has tall props, such as stuffed animals, so the child remains preoccupied.

The parent is another attention-getter he uses to maintain interest. "The presence of mother or father reduces fears of unfamiliar surroundings," he says. "At the same time, the parent can coax different facial expressions, if they are needed."

And he takes plenty of poses. "The amateur often stops clicking when he thinks he has it. The pro keeps on shooting until he knows he has it," he declares.

Ann Landers

Cat's got her tongue

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is one I have never read about in your column nor have I ever heard it mentioned by anyone else.

I find it impossible to call my husband by his name when I am speaking to him. I don't use any endearing substitutes either, such as "honey" or "dear." I just don't call him anything.

When I was younger I had the same problem with another man for whom I cared deeply. Is it emotional? Can you explain why I'm like this? How can I get over it? Thanks for any help you can give me. – Short Circuit In Sandusky

Dear S.C.: According to Dr. Harold Visotsky, Director of the Institute of Psychiatry at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, there may be one of two reasons for your "problem," depending on how you feel about your husband.

If you have a warm and loving relationship, your inability to call him by his name is an attempt to deny this close relationship with the purpose of protecting it against a possible loss.

If you feel some deep-seated resentment against him, some hidden anger perhaps, your refusal to address him by name is your way of keeping him at arm's length.

So, look inside, honey, and take your pick.

Dear Ann: I must make a big decision and you've got to help me.

My best friend and her husband asked if I would look after her little boy when she and her husband went on vacation. I said yes -- thinking it would be a week or so.

Yesterday Katie came over to discuss their plans. Suddenly she said, "Do you think you could water my plants when we're gone? Six weeks is a long time for plants to go without water."

I asked, "SIX WEEKS?" She said, "yes, it wouldn't pay to take trip like that for a shorter time."

When I found my tongue I explained that my husband's vacation begins on the 15th and we were taking our four children across country in a camper. "Well," Katie shot back, "you can take Jimmie along. He'd love it!" I almost dropped my teeth.

My husband says he doesn't want their child on our vacation and allowed as how it was lot of guts for anyone to leave a kid with friends for six weeks. I hate to lose her friendsip. What should I do? – Unglued In Carolina

Dear Carolina: Glue yourself together and say: "We'll take Jimmie for X number of days, but when we leave for our vacation, you'll have to make other plans. Our camper can just barely accommodate our own family."

If the friendship falls apart you may be lucky. She sounds like a very brassy lady to me.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15-year-old girl who needs some answers. I learned from your column that alcoholism is a sickness. What about fathers who cheat? Is that a sickness, too?

Ever since my mother told me Daddy has been having an affair with a woman he works with I find it hard to be decent to him. I'd feel better if I thought he was "sick." What about it? – B. C. Girl

Dear B.C.: In a way it is sick, so consider it as such and try to be civil. Too bad your mother told you. She should have unloaded her anger and frustration on a counselor or clergyman and left you out of it.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers's guide to "Necking and Petting-- What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. BVox 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Former Sikeston resident enters music evangelism

Former Sikeston resident Mike Lee has recently entered the field of music evangelism full time. Previously, he was director of public relations for Central Technical Community College Area in Grand Island, Neb.

In explaining his decision for entering the field of evangelism, Lee stated:

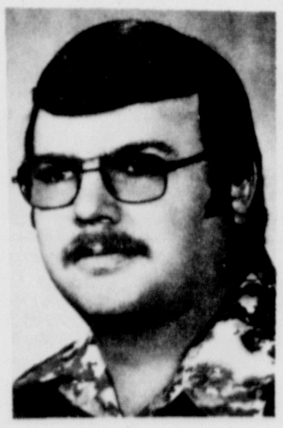

"I first accepted Christ as my Saviour some 18 years ago. But it was only a short time back that I realized that I wasn't giving everything to Him . About a year ago, I felt a strong calling from the Lord to enter the field of music evangelism and the Lord, being the persistent peson that He is, didn't let the feeling go away, and it has stayed with me ever since.

"About six months ago, I finally said, 'Here I am, Lord. I think this is what you want me to do, and I'm in Your hands.'

"Since that time, many wonderful things have happened to me and my family. The Lord has led Hallie (my wife) and me through many trying times, and each time we've come through victorious and more entrenched in our relationship with the Holy Spirit. The knowledge that the Lord wants me to enter this field is stronger now than ever before."

A native of Sikeston, Lee is the son of Mrs. Margaret Lee, 314 Hardin St., and the late Ronald Lee, who was city collector for several years prior to his death.

Lee is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau and formerly was music director and moderator of First Baptist Church at Hastings, Neb. He has appeared in numerous concerts and revival crusades in Nebraska and Missouri. His first record, with Rainbow Sound Studios of Dallas, Tex., will be released later this summer.

Mike Lee

Prior to moving to Nebraska, Lee served as band director of Richland High School at Essex and was news director of radio station KSIM in Sikeston.

Lee will appear in area churchs in July and is available for sacred concerts, revivals, crusades or any other type program where his musical talent can be used for the Lord.

He may be contacted by writing to Mike Lee Evangelistic Association, 416 N. Custer, Grand Island, Neb. 68801 or to P. O. Box 115, Sikeston, Mo. 63801, or by calling Nebraska phone number 308-381-1594 or 471-0115 in Sikeston.

"This is the day which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it." (Psalm 118:24, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, open our eyes to the beauty and the needs around us, and help us to be responsive to both. Amen.

Church Participation Sunday slated in Malden

MALDEN — The Malden Bicentennial Committee jhas designated July 4 as Church Participation Sunday, according to Virginia Towery, chairwoman of the committee.

The committee hopes that the churches and other religious organizations will become involved in the Bicentennial celebration and make Church Participation Sunday a city-wide event.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 11, the 163rd day of 1976. There are 203 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1727, King George the First of England died.

In 1940, Princesss Juliana of the Netherlands arrived in Canada as an exile during World War Two.

In 1963, Alabama Governor George Wallace stepped aside to permit Blacks to register at the University of Alabama in Montgomery as the federalized National Guard stood by.

In 1964, Greece rejected direct talks with Turkey over the future of the island of Cyprus.

In 1970, U.S. military prsence in Libya ended 19 days ahead of schedule when the last American detachment left Wheelus Air Force Base.

Ten years ago: Fresh American troops moved into forward positions for new assaults against a battered but stubborn North Vietnamese unit in South Vietnam's Central Highlands.

Five years ago: Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev called for an end to the arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One year ago: The U.S. Senate confirmed the nomination of former Gov. Stanley Hathaway of Wyoming as secretary of the interior.

election date, or until April of 1978, since the length of terms normally are staggered according to the number of votes received.

The alderman receiving the highest number of votes is installed for a two-year term and the one receiving the second highest vote serves a one-year term. Two aldermen from each ward will be elected. Those running for mayor are elected at large.

Candidates for mayor and alderman must be one-year residents of the city. There are no restrictions on candidates for the offices of collector, police chief and police judge at present, according to Potashnick. However, the council indicated it would like an ordinanace drawn up placing the same restrictions on all candidates.

Carter reported that he had received calls from residents concerning water approved signs not being erected at the city limits. It was pointed out that since it is mandatory that all cities have approved water, the health department no longer provides or erects theses signs. East Prairie's water system has been approved more than a year and a half.

The council agreed to table salary increases for city employes until the new board is elected.

Liquor license renewals approved included: Anita Louis Griggs, 115 East Main St. and Larry Smith, 501 East Main St., 5 per cent beer; Hugh A. Treadway, 728 East Washington Drive, James H. Owens, East Washington Drive, P. W. Brown, 109 East Main St. and Bill Yeager, 607 East Main St. packaged liquor.

In routine business the council approved expenditures of $11,195.76 for May; collectors report of $29,129.69 and the police judge report showing $925.45 in fines assessed during May.

Proposed county health center meeting brought no surprises

BLOOMFIELD — A meeting of supporters of countywide health centers held no surprises Thursday afternoon as none of the approximately 15 persons present spoke out against even though a number of questions were asked.

The meeting was conducted by Bernie Mayor R. B. Woods and chairman of a committee seeking approval of a 10-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax levy in a special election on June 22.

He told the small group that a health center program provided by the state on a trial basis has served a need in the county but that if the proposal is defeated, the program will cease.

"The program is there," he said. "No critic that I know of has used any service. Nobody who has used any of the services has objected to it."

The temporary health center now in use was set up in November 1974 with $29,000 provided by the state for a two-year period. If the proposal is approved at the polls, the revenue generated in the first year will be about $72,000.

The large amount of revenue generated was defended by saying that it would take a large amount initially to set up the program and that the tax rate can be lowered by the health center board of trustees which will oversee the operation.

If approved, a five-member board will be elected and will decide where to construct a building to house the facilities, establish guidelines for its operation and set the tax rate.

This was pointed out a number of times during the meeting. One person asked if the sanitarian hired by the center would inspect grocery stores and restaurants.

The answer: This, too, would depend upon what the board of trustees decides.

Literature provided by supporters says functions of a health center could include blood pressure clinics, immunizations, family planning clinics, nutritional programs, home visits and venereal disease conferences.

Voters in the county have defeated similar proposals in the past but supporters keep trying. A similar situation exists in Cape Girardeau County.

One person present at the meeting suggested that in Cape County the proposal has met defeat a number of times due to landowners who do not want to be taxed.

In Southeast Missouri, only Stoddard, Cape Girardeau and Ste. Genevieve counties have no center, but Cape and Ste. Genevieve counties have nursing services.

It was suggested that since the state provides vaccines free of charge, if the county has no health center, it will be paying to help other counties in the state without getting any help for themselves.

Woods pointed out the services will be available to all Stoddard Countians and not just low-income families.

The election later this month will be paid for by supporters of the proposal who have provided volunteers to work at the polling places.

bruised and contused. The suit also says she suffered injury to her left knee which resulted in the loss of the patella and suffered fractures to her pelvis.

The suit further states that all injuries are severe, permanent and progressive that the injuries required her to be hospitalized and that in the future she will require further mtreatment by doctors and incur additional medical expense.

Counts three and four of the suit are against Towell Count three asks $200,000 for the death of Daugherty and count four asks $250,000 for personal injury to Mrs. Daugherty.

Another suit filed in behalf of Kevin Schwartz by Anna Mae Meyer, seeks $200,000 for personal injuries and damages from Bishop Bernard F. Law and Richard Snelson, representing Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church and Ben Harmon, Rosemary Ross, Marvin LeGrand, Sylvester Asmus, Iris Crowe and Elmer Enderle, board members of the St. Ambrose Catholic School in Chaffeee.

Suit alleges that on Oct. 1, 1974, Kevin Schwartz, was participating in a recess class under the direction of Richard Snelson and was playing near an upright bolleyball standard and that the volleyball standard fell onto or struck him causing severe and permanent injuries.

The suit further alleges that Snelson failed to direct, supervise and observe Schwartz at play to keep him from coming into the close proximity of the dangerous upright volleyball standard. That Snelson was negligent in that he permitted the volleyball standard be used in such a manner that it was likely to strike or cause injury to persons occupying the playground.

The suit alleges that the members of the school board were negligent in that they did not provide an adequate number of supervisors for the class, that they were negligent in that they permitted the moving of the bolleyball standard by children when they knew or should have known injury could occur.

Schwartz was struck in the head by the volleyball pole receiving a brain concussion and a permanent loss of hearing in one ear. The suit claims he has and will continue to lose rest, sleep and the use and function of the injured ear, in the future.

Suit asks for judgement in the amount of $200,000 for the injuries and damages.

A breach of warranty and damages suit totaling $29,850 was filed Tuesday against the Anderson Corp. of Bayport, Minn. Manufacturers of Perma Shield Windows, by C. L. Blanton III. and Cherie L. Blanton of Sikeston.

The suit alleges that windows manufactured by the Anderson Corp were installed in a new home being constructed for the Blanton's. The suit alleges the windows were found to be defective and unfit and that as a result the home sustained extensive deterioration resulting in extensive repair and reworking of the entire house.

Because the windows were improperly and defectively designed, the home sustained damages and the couple seeks judgement in the amount of $9,950.

Count two asks $9,950 because the windows were not fit and proper for the use in their homes as had been promised.

Count three alleges breach of warranty and seeks judgement in the amount of $9,950.

Fabick jumped to a 4-0 lead after three innings but a six run uprising by Righter put them ahead 6-5 after four innings. Both teams had their hitting clothes on and neither pitcher could do much in the way of silencing their opponents bats. Righter scored three runs in the sixth inning and looked as if they would be the winners but Fabick rallied for nien runs in the last inning to pull the game out.

John Stewart, Keith Yates, Hindman and Stinnett rapped out three hits apiece for Fabick. Sherman, VanPool and Ruby collected four hits apiece for Righter.

Ziegenhorn wasted no time getting to losing pitcher Jim Goergen as they scored 17 runs in the first three innings in the rout. Moores Firestone scored all five of their runs in the second. Priday led the winners at bat with 4-for-4. Goergan collected both of Moores Firestone's safeties.

Hitters took over Jr. Babe Ruth League action at the Sports Complex Thursday when Nowell held off Bank of Sikeston 12-8 and Davis and Bird outlasted Eagles 19-18.

A seven run fifth inning boosted Bank of Sikeston to their win. Reliever Kerry Northcutt picked up the win.

Johnny Longstreet led Nowell with a double and a triple. Doug Lucy also rapped a two base hit for the winners. Kenny Spitler and Scott McDowell had doubles for Bank.

Teammates Russell Deal and Marty Nelson both fanned their first time up against the Eagles Club, but, from there on, made their opponents pay. Each player had two doubles and a homer and they accounted for 12 runs batted in between them. Deal was four- for- five with five runs scored and Nelson was five-for- six with four runs scored as the Davis and Bird team held off the Eagles 19-18 . Steve Burgess belted two triples for the winners.

When Chris Launius was gunned down at the plate carrying the tying run, the Eagles' bottom of the seventh rally fell short.

Launius was the loser and Nelson picked up the win in relief.

Saints host Anna Saturday

The Sikeston Saints look to righthander Bobby Blankenship for a win against anna, Illinois, in an 8 p.m. Bi-State League game tonight at V.F.W. Stadium. Blankenship has the only Saints win, an 8-5 decision over Anna just under two weeks ago. The Sikeston team has a league mark of 1-3.

"We need more consistency in our play," said team manager Tom Masterson, recently.The Saints have erred 15 times in four games.

And, the hitting hasn't been there to overcome the defensive shortcomings. As a team the Saints are stroking a collective .230.

Things don't look much brighter on the horizon for the Sikeston hitters. The probable starting hurler for Anna in the Friday night game is hard-throwing lefty Dana Pearson, a product of Murray (Ky.) State.

Infielders Rick Eisenbach and Grant Dambach will become available to the team sometime this weekend, but probably not for the Anna game. The two recently concluded their college baseball season when SEMO University - Cape fell just short in the college World Series. Both will probably play in Sunday's game at Ste. Genevieve. Eisenbach is expected to play in tonight's game, but personal matters may interfere.

If the slick- fielding infielder is on the scene, the Sikeston lineup will look like this:

1ST Bruce Lawrence, CF	.125
2ND Bill Schatzley, SS	.375
3RD Rick Eisenbach, 3B	.....
4TH Less Schatzley, RF	.143
5TH Jeff Jackson, DH	.214
6TH Jim Saulter, 1B	.176
7TH Kenny Urhahn, 2B	.200
8TH Charlie Miller, C	.000
9TH Mitch Walker, LF	.333

PITCHER Bob Blankenship, 1-1

For Parents 'n Teachers

This section of The Mini Page is especially designed for parents and teachers to use with this week's Mini Page.

Page 1: Hang this page in a prominent spot. Have the children discuss the different kinds of birds. Put a check when you observe one of them. A very good, beautifully illustrated book in color to order is: "Fifty Birds of Town and Country," written and illustrated by Bob Hines, Peter A. Anastasi, associate editor. This book is published by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Costs: $1.20 paperbound or $4 clothbound. Send your order to: U.S. Government Printing Office, Public Documents Distribution Center, Pueblo, Col. 81009. (Make check or money order to Superintendent of Documents.)

Page 2: Birds You're Bound to See: Talk about how the two jays are different. Be on the look-out for birds in this page.

Page 3: The Problem Bird: Talk about the starlings and why they are disliked. Ask your child to read the paragraph and then give three reasons why these birds are undesirable.

Birds you'll spot alot!

Blue Jay

Scrub Jay

Many species or bird families do not live in every part of the country. Blue jays live in the east, except in Florida. Scrub jays live in the west. How are they different?

Bluebirds

Bluebirds are not as common as they used to be. Starlings have chased many from their nests. They nest in old trees or in holes in buildings. They eat insects and vegetables (6 in. long).

Flickers

Flickers live in open country and parks. They have yellow (light orange in the west) under surfaces. Flickers eat more ants than any other bird (13 in. long).

Meadowlarks

Meadowlarks are often seen in fields and on fences. They have yellow breasts. Their song is pretty, too (8½ in. long).

Song Sparrows

These sparrows have pretty songs. Their breasts are streaked (5½ in. long).

Birds You're Bound to See

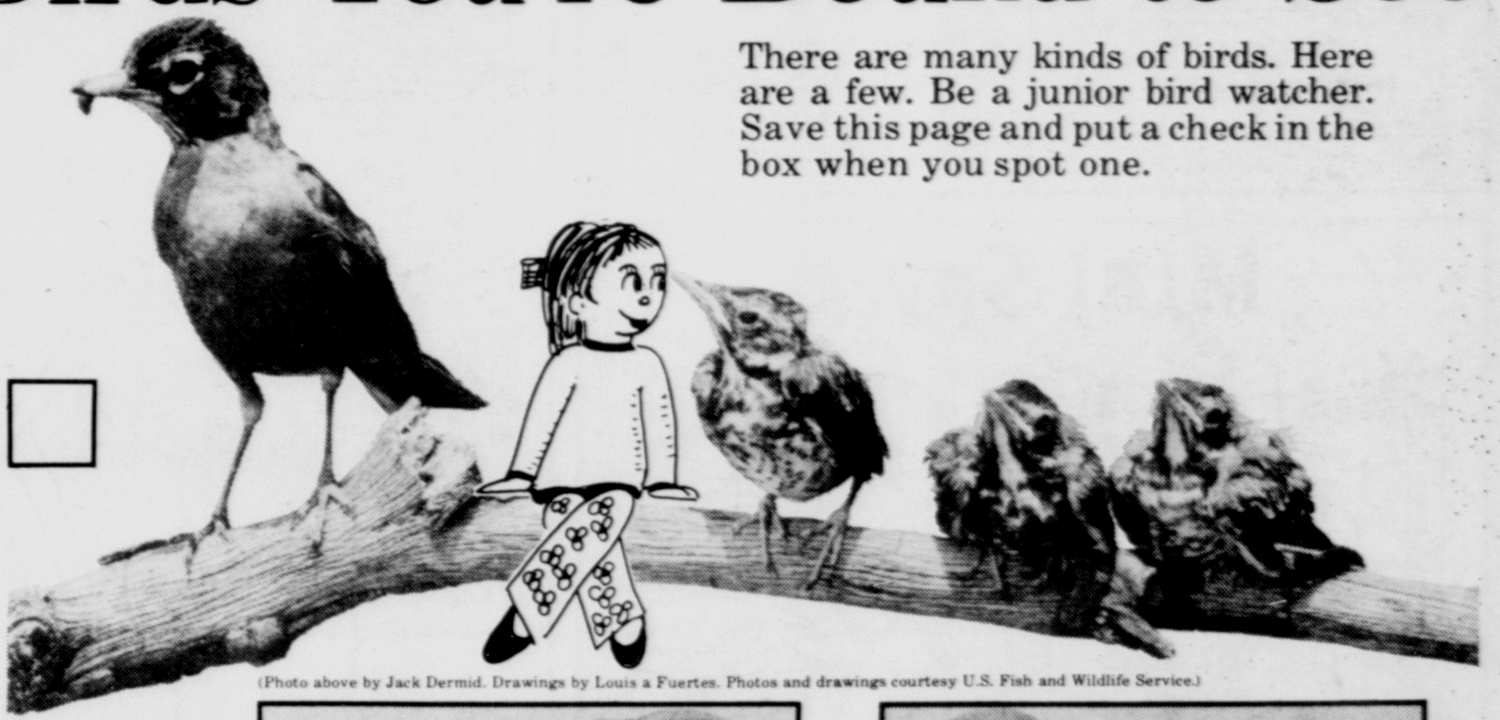

There are many kinds of birds. Here are a few. Be a junior bird watcher. Save this page and put a check in the box when you spot one.

Robins

Adult robins have orange breasts. Babies have spotted breasts. Look for their nests in shrubs, orchards or on buildings. They like berries, worms and insects (10 in. long).

Cardinals

Cardinals often live in city yards and parks in low shrubs or branches of trees. The males are a bright red (8 in. long).

House Sparrows

House sparrows live in cities and suburbs. They are greyish tan with white cheeks and white stripes on their wings. The male has a black bib (5 in. long).

Downy Woodpeckers

Downy woodpeckers live in woodlands, orchards and gardens. They are black and white. The male has a red spot on his head. They eat insects (6 in. long).

Common Crows

Crows live in cities as well as suburbs and farms. They are black. They feed very early in the morning. They eat grubs, beetles. mice and other pests (8 in. long).

Mockingbirds

Mockingbirds copy the song of other birds. They are grey with white wing patches (9 in. long).

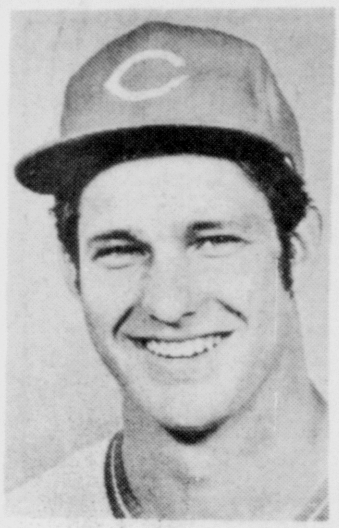

Mourning Doves

Mourning doves live in cities and towns. They eat seeds, berries and wild fruits (10 in. long).

Last season, the 25-year-old lefthander helped Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" win the world championship with super pitching.

In his past five years with the Reds, Don has won 65 games and lost only 37. He developed a forkball, which has enabled him to strike out a lot of batters.

Gullett, who lives in Lynn, Kentucky, was also a standout football player in high school. He scored 72 points in one game.

He is married and has two children.

The Problem Bird

Starlings are usually about 8½ inches in length. They have greenish-black, slightly-spotted feathers. They walk on short legs that are wide apart.

One day, 86 years ago, a man released 60 starlings in Central Park in New York City. He had imported these birds from Europe.

He did not do the country a favor.

These birds have become very big pests. They have multiplied at such a rate that they are one of the most common birds.

They are problems for several reasons.

They travel in huge flocks and swoop down and eat farmers' crops.

Their diet includes grasshoppers, caterpillars and beetles. These are foods that other birds like, too.

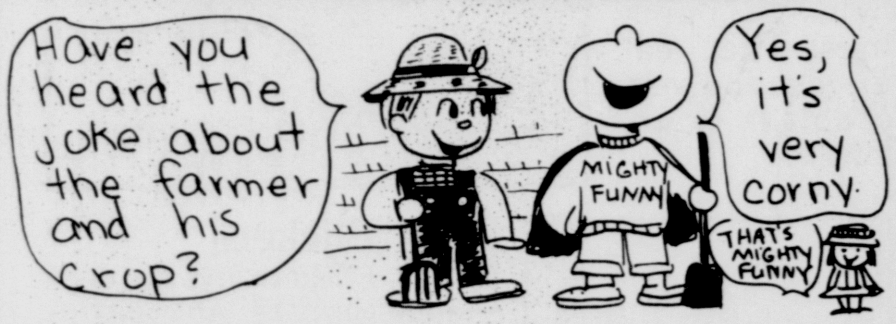

Starlings are not the only pests. Blackbirds and grackles are also problems. These birds, along with the starling, produce a lot of droppings that make buildings dirty and cause health problems.

Bird experts are trying to find ways to control these birds that nobody likes.

Hints for Bird Watching

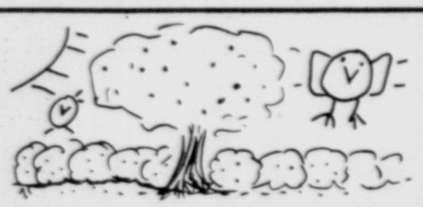

1. Get a good bird book. Bird watchers usually identify birds by size, color and diet.

Bird	where	when
Robin	by Gate	June 6

2. Keep a bird calendar. Write the name of the bird and where you saw it.

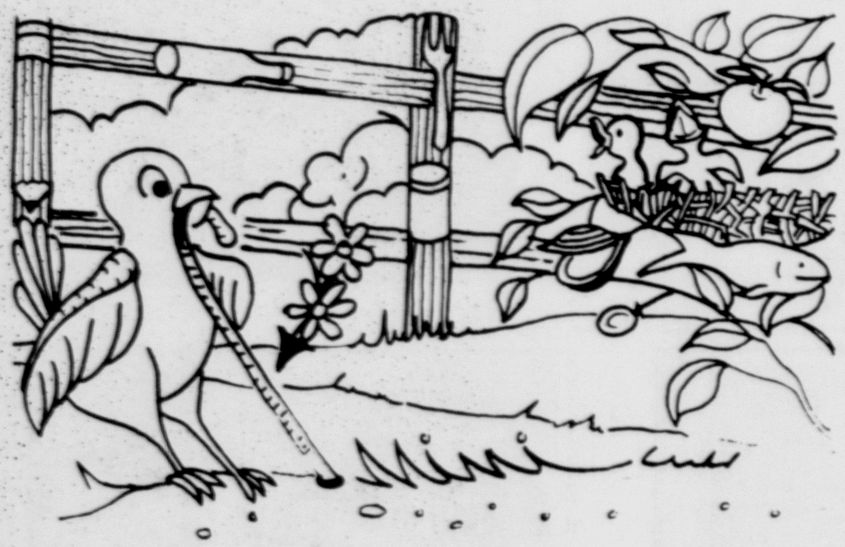

3. Put a feeder out where you can see it from your window.

4. Grow plants such as grapes, honeysuckle and dogwood trees. These have berries.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

If you found a baby bird?

This time of year, many baby birds flutter to the ground before they are able to fly. They have feathers, but aren't able to take to the air.

1. Wait and watch. The chances are very good that it has not been deserted by its mother. Wait at least one hour. Keep cats and dogs away.

2. If the mother bird does not show up, you might try raising it, but it's hard to do. Keep it warm, by placing it near a light bulb or hot water bottle. Force feed it every half-hour with an eyedropper using cornmeal mush or tiny bits of bread soaked in milk. When it is strong enough, put it outside on a high limb.

Bridger, Sikeston Motor & Triangle win

Bridger defeated Barketts E-Z Mart 9-6, Sikeston Motor was victorious over Marks Food Mart 13-11 and Triangle beat Rotary 15-3 in the Minor Division of the Girls Softball League Thursday night.

Triangle had no trouble with Rotary as they scored four runs in each of the first two innings to put the game out of reach. Elizabeth Pobst, Eddie Simpson and Karen Crugnale collected two hits apiece for the winners. Sherry Campbell and Diane Dillon collected the only two hits for Rotary.

Bridger had to stage a last inning comeback to defeat Barketts. Bridger jumped to a 2-0 lead and led 5-1 after three and a half innings. Barkett took the lead with two runs in the fourth and three in the fifth but Bridger crossed the plate four times in the sixth inning to pull out the victory. Sharon Boyd had two hits for the winners.

Sikeston Motor and Marks had a slugfest as the winners banged out 13 hits while Marks had four.

Sikeston Motor scored three runs in the first inning and led 4-0 before Marks roared back with four to tie the game in the second inning. Sikeston Motor scored three runs to take the lead but Marks came right back to score four in the third to regain the advantage. Sikeston put the game away with six runs in the fourth.

Jodi Harris had two of Marks four hits in the game. Susan Combs had three hits to lead the winners.

Pitchers shine in Sr. Babe Ruth play

Pitchers took over the spotlight in the Sr. Babe Ruth League Thursday night. Jim Moore beat Security Bank and Trust 6-2 in a game stopped by the time limit. Then lefties Rick Taylor and Kevin Lasters hooked up in a pitcher's duel in the nightcap, Taylor winning on a six-hit shutout, 4-0. Lasters allowed just three hits and fanned 15 while dropping the decision.

Jim Moore scored in every inning after the first with the help of doubles by Broshears and Greer. McMurray had a double for Security Bank and Trust.

Don Francis got the victory with three scoreless innings in relief of starter Allen Davidson. Art Romanowski was the loser.

Wayne Barnett's long triple off jthe rightfield fence scored a run, then he crossed the plate for a pair of insurance runs to back the tough hurling of Taylor. Two errors, a walk and a passed ball had given the Elks Club an early 2-0 lead.

Marks wins again

Bob Stinnett outpitched John Chesser in The Sikeston Fast-pitch Softball League Thursday to give the league leading Marks Food Mart team a 3-2 victory over the Eagles.

Stinnett also knocked in the winning run with a single in the fifth inning after Ricky Burnett had got on safely ahead of him.

Marks started the game with safe bunts that the Eagles couldn't field cleanly and took a precarious 2-0 lead. Stinnett hasd his drops and curves and knuckle balls going until the Eagles tied the score in the third inning on basehits by Jerry Taylor, Jim Kindle and a basehit by Terry Comstock.

The second game of the night between Bank of Sikeston and Eby's was forfeited to Bank of Sikeston because Eby's had only seven players show up for the start. The league rules say that a team cannot start a game with less than eight players.
